Must Expect Invasion of Europe

Supreme Hour for Canadian Troops May Be Imminent Prime Minister Declares

By C. B. BLACKBURN

TORONTO, April 19.—(CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King gave warning here today that "we should be prepared for the invasion of Europe at any time," and that the "supreme hour" for Canadian fighting men might be imminent.

He spoke at a Canadian Club luncheon, launching the Fourth Victory Loan campaign, an appeal which he said was more urgent and compelling than any previous campaign because of the nearness of the supreme hour.

But while conditions now seemed favorable for a combined blow at German power in Europe Mr. King warned that delays might be made necessary by unpredictable events in one or another theatre of the global war.

REVIEWS WAR EFFORT

In an appeal to the people of Canada to support the Victory Loan with the same spirit as that actuating Canadian fighting men who are prepared to give their all, Mr. King gave a review of Canada's war effort and of the circumstances which led him to believe that a decisive moment is approaching.

Mr. King said he could not forecast the day when the supreme effort would be made or the day of victory but he might help his listeners to form their own conclusions.

"We should be prepared for the invasion of Europe at any time. But conditions may change in unexpected ways. It is well, therefore, that we should also be prepared to wait.

MAY BE TOO HOPEFUL

"Through some unpredictable event all our present calculations may be set at naught. We may be found to have been too hopeful.

"Moreover, we must never lose sight of the fact that the Allied powers are at war with Japan as well as with Germany and Italy. . . . Major battles may be fought at any moment in any quarter of the globe. . . .

"Of the present situation the most one can say is that in the Orient and the Occident alike the

Ottawa Refuses Alberta Road Building Needs

Request by the government of Alberta for priorities on road building equipment needed to make improvements in the way between Edmonton and Dawson Creek has been refused by the Dominion government, Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works, announced Monday.

This refusal, Mr. Fallow stated, had placed the provincial government in an almost hopeless position to effect the improvements to meet the tremendous increase in traffic through northern war projects.

He said that negotiations will be continued in the hope that those in authority at Ottawa will realize that something must be done. In the meantime the provincial government intends to do whatever is possible with its own limited resources.

Text of Mr. Fallow's statement follows:

Realizing the seriousness of the highway situation between Edmonton and Dawson Creek, the American authorities in Edmonton have been pressing the Alberta Government for such improvements to the highway as will enable them to transport much needed equipment and supplies. They have also signified their willingness to lend their support to any application for priorities which we may deem necessary in order to enable us to do this work. Accordingly we have renewed our application for priorities on the necessary equipment, attaching copies of correspondence from the American authorities, to indicate the importance of the situation. Word has been received this morning that our application has been denied.

The Alberta Government has also been pressing the Ottawa authorities for assistance on the grounds that this is a war emergency and beyond the powers of any provincial government to deal with successfully. They have, however, flatly refused any consideration whatever in the matter. This has placed the Alberta Government in an almost hopeless position to effect such improvements to the highway from Edmonton to Dawson Creek to accommodate this tremendous increase in traffic.

Negotiations, however, will be continued in the hope that those in authority will realize that something must be done, and in the meantime the Provincial Government intends to do whatever is possible with its own very limited resources.

Cruiser Canberra Launched in U.S.

QUINCY, Mass., April 19.—(AP)—The heavy United States cruiser Canberra, named for an Australian cruiser which was lost last August and also for Australia's capital city, was launched today at the Fore River shipyard of the Bethlehem Steel Company, becoming the first United States naval vessel to carry the name of a foreign city.

Lady Dixon, wife of Sir Owen Dixon, Australian minister to the United States, was the sponsor.

Desert Air Force Congratulated by Air Chief Marshal

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NORTH AFRICA, April 19.—(AP)—Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Coningham congratulated Air Vice-Marshal Harry Broadhurst today for "the exhilarating success" of his western desert air force fighters yesterday against Axis aerial shipping in knocking down 74 planes off the Tunisian coast.

"I presume," he added, "that the premium of insurance rates on air traffic over the Sicilian Strait is rising astronomically. Well done!"

WASHINGTON, April 19.—(AP)—President Roosevelt has signed a bill providing for the appointment of women physicians and surgeons in the United States Navy Medical Corps.

U.S. Gets Report

Martinique's Status Will Be Clarified Soon

WASHINGTON, April 19.—(AP) — Further clarification of the situation on Martinique was expected in diplomatic circles today as a result of information brought to Washington by Marcel Etienne Malige, United States consul general at Fort de France.

State Secretary Cordell Hull last week told a press conference the situation on Martinique — where the French high commissioner, Admiral Georges Robert, has been holding out against full collaboration with the Allies despite a food blockade of his Caribbean island domain since last November—still was fermenting, but that he hoped to make a more definite announcement soon.

Meanwhile Admiral Robert made public, in a letter to Associated Press Correspondent Joseph B. Dynan, the conditions under which he would be willing to swing Martinique into the United Nations' camp.

ROBERT'S CONDITIONS

He told Dynan it would be necessary:

"That this act would not mean the necessity of rebellion against the French government. That the Allies permit the French who are fighting—instead of constituting two factors, one dominated by Britain and the other by the American government—to form a unity under one single authority vested with sovereign rights. That this act safeguards the interests of the French Antilles such as I have been able to conserve them up to the present."

Robert also previously had been recalled to Washington for a full report of the situation at Fort de France and already was here when Robert's letter was published.

Welder-Saboteur Given Stiff Term

BALTIMORE, April 19.—(AP)—A 20-year-old shipyard welder, one of 10 arrested on charges of sabotaging ships by doing defective work, was sentenced to 1½ years' imprisonment today by a judge who declared war workers must be made to realize the importance of their work.

Prosecutors said they believed it was the first such conviction and sentence in the United States.

George Arnold Steele, who received the sentence, was convicted last week of improperly welding a total of 660 inches of shell plate while employed at the Bethlehem-Fairfield Shipyard, Inc.

The other nine men, all arrested within two days last week, have been held under $5,000 bail each for further hearings April 22.

Nazi Army Chief Arrives in Sofia To Unify Forces

LONDON, April 19.—(CP)—The Algiers radio, quoting sources in Istanbul, Turkey, said today that Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the German high command, has arrived in Sofia, Bulgaria, to organize a unified command in the Balkans of German, Italian and Balkan officers.

The broadcast said the new command would be entrusted with the defence of the Balkans against any Allied landing attempts.

Extend Mine Use

WASHINGTON, April 19.—(AP)—United States naval experts said today that German submarines might resort to extensive use of mines in American coastal waters this spring or summer as part of their offensive against United Nations shipping.

Mine Strike At Drumheller Is Deadlocked

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

DRUMHELLER, April 19.—Throughout this valley where 17 mines are idle with coal orders amounting to thousands of tons on hand to be filled, not one bucketfull has been mined as the strike entered its fourth day today. There are no signs of any possible settlement as no negotiations have taken place since the men walked out. It is expected that Fred Harrison, Dominion fair wage officer, will soon be here as it is reported he is on his way.

It is hardly realized that a strike is in progress here. The area appears as if every man started on his summer vacation at the same moment. There is even both hearing about staging meetings. So far the strike committee of eight are meeting regularly. No meetings were held Sunday.

GUARD AGAINST DAMAGE

Maintenance of the mine so that no harm may result is being closely watched by the strike executive and various pit committees. It was given out from strike headquarters

Military Activity Reported at Rock

BERNE, April 19.—(AP)—A dispatch from Gibraltar to the Tribune De Geneva yesterday reported military activity at the fortress which it said was believed to be in preparation for an attack against Crete after the eventual success in Tunisia.

It reported heavy movement of troops, materials and warships, and arrival at Gibraltar of a large number of planes. More than 25,000 troops have left Gibraltar for an unspecified destination, it added, with only destroyers both toward the Mediterranean and the Atlantic.

One of the first actions expected after Tunisia is an attack "to neutralize the power of the German fortress established on the isle of Crete," the dispatch said.

Orlando Enters Not Guilty Plea In Detroit Court

DETROIT, April 19 — (AP) — James V. Orlando, Detroit Red Wings hockey star, was arraigned before Federal Judge Edward J. Moinet today on an indictment charging him with violation of the United States Selective Service Act. A plea of not guilty was entered for him and his bond of $2,000 was continued.

Orlando is accused of having obtained 2-B classification through misrepresenting in a selective service questionnaire that he held an essential job with a Detroit war firm.

RIO DE JANEIRO, April 19. — (AP)—Oswaldo Aranha, foreign minister of Brazil, yesterday denied a report broadcast by the German-controlled Vichy radio that Brazilian troops have landed in French Morocco. He said a Brazilian military mission is at the North African front, but "we have not sent troops—yet."

Giant Bombers Cross Alps To Smash Italo Naval Base

LONDON, April 19.—A strong force of British-based bombers pounded the Italian naval base at Spezia last night, intensifying an aerial pincers offensive designed to blunt Axis sea power in advance of Allied invasion of south Europe.

Striking more than 700 miles across the English channel and German-occupied Europe, Britain's biggest bombers loosed a heavy and concentrated attack on Spezia, one of Italy's principal naval bases, the air ministry said.

Only one bomber was lost despite the 1,400-mile round trip across well-defended territory.

SECOND IN WEEK

The four-engined bombers roared over northern Italy for the second attack in a week on Spezia while Flying Fortresses and other Anglo-American bombers in North Africa were subjecting southern Italy and the outposts of Sardinia and Sicily to a constant rain of bombs.

Bombers from both west and south were concentrating on destroying the Axis sea and air power, both to soften up Italy for a possible invasion and to

Crash of Exploding Bombs Shatters Northland Quiet: Fort McMurray Ice-Jam Hit

For the first time in history, the quiet solitude of Canada's peaceful northland was shattered by the crash of exploding aerial bombs as a tactical aircraft of the United States Army Air Force, made two separate attacks over the week-end on ice jams in the Athabaska river near Fort McMurray, where floods had threatened supplies and equipment for north war projects valued at more than $1,000,000.

The army plane, a medium bomber, with a crew of four, flew from Edmonton Saturday afternoon, when four medium calibre bombs were dropped on an ice jam eight miles below Fort McMurray.

On Sunday morning the bomber flew north again from Edmonton and dropped eight bombs on a jam 35 miles upstream from Fort McMurray.

The crew of the bomber, which was diverted here for the ice-bombing mission, while on a training flight from Midland, Texas, reported direct hits on the objectives in each attack.

The bombs were dropped from a fairly low altitude.

A GREAT SIGHT

"Geysers of ice and water spurted high into the air," he added.

Effect of the bombing on the ice jams was not immediately discernible, as the object of the bombing is to open large fissures in the MOSCOW, April 19.—Reinforced German troops, resuming their assault after losing more than 1,400 men in futile attacks yesterday, drove into the Russian trenches in the northwest Caucasus today, but were routed in hard hand-to-hand fighting.

In the Ukraine, the Red Army captured an "advantageous" enemy line in a night attack and killed 100 Germans, the Soviet midday communique said today.

The increased aerial support afforded German forces in the Caucasus was typical of the stepped-up Axis aerial activity all along the front. In addition to 25 German planes shot down and eight damaged in the Caucasus, eight were shot down over the approaches to Leningrad.

Another 30 German planes were destroyed on the ground in a Russian air raid on an airdrome on the Smolensk front.

Coal Rationing Declared Likely For Next Winter

SASKATOON, April 19.—(CP)—There is every likelihood that coal will be rationed this fall or winter, and householders who wish to assure themselves of an adequate supply of fuel should order their coal early this summer to keep the mines in production. This was the core of a message received by City Commissioner Fred Bradley today from W. J. Taylor, regional representative of the coal controller in Calgary.

Canadian, British Airmen Are Killed

If Boards Request

May Cut Alcohol Content of Beer To Boost Output

By B. T. RICHARDSON

Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, April 19.—The agitation against the 10 per cent cut in beer consumption continues.

The latest twist in this agitation is the statement, attributed to labor, that unless the beer cut is restored, the working men will not buy war bonds.

There is not a shred of evidence to support this cry. Labor leaders brand it as pure invention. Inquiry in government circles indicated that the government is not disposed to yield to the requests either of beer consumers or the brewers.

There is good reason to believe, however, that the government will make concessions to the provincial liquor control boards, whose job of administration has been greatly complicated by the reduction. If requested so to do, the government is prepared to lower the alcohol content of beer and in this way allow a substantial increase in volume. The figures mentioned are that the alcohol content might be reduced to 7 per cent from the prevailing average of 8.5 per cent.

Using the same amount of alcohol as last year, this would enable the brewers to increase output substantially. There would be more beer available than last year but it would be much less potent. This has been the policy followed by the British government.

It is thought here that such a concession would please the Liquor Boards, and would be welcomed by the brewers or the consumers.

Aerial Victory Off Tunisia Ranks High

By The Canadian Press

The destruction of 74 planes off the Tunisian coast yesterday by Allied airmen in a single battle ranks high among aerial victories of the war.

The worth of the victory was greatly increased by the fact that 58 of the planes shot down were transport.

The Allies have bigger bags to their credit, however. At the climax of the battle of Britain, 185 German planes were shot down by the R.A.F. on Sept. 15, 1940. Seven days later, 120 German raiders were destroyed in one day. Only a few weeks earlier, on Sept. 9, 1940, R.A.F. pilots downed 99.

The Allies shot down at least 91 planes in the Canadian raid on Dieppe in August, 1942; and the total may have been even greater. In that raid, 275 planes were destroyed or damaged, but full data have not been far above the confirmed record of 91 known to have been destroyed.

All the British ships returned safely with only minor damage.

Add Ten More To Record Bag Of 58 Sunday

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, April 19.—Allied air forces destroyed 10 more German planes today, boosting their two-day bag to 96, including 68 big Junkers aerial transports, 58 of which were downed Sunday in a single record-breaking battle off the north coast of Tunisia.

British and American fighter fleets picked up the campaign against the Axis air lanes where they left off after the impressive victory yesterday, and by 10 a.m. had shot down 10 Junkers 52's and one escorting Messerschmitt 109.

Since April 5 the Allies have shot down 159 of the aerial ferries operating on the route between Tunisia and Axis bases to the south, while a great many more were destroyed on the ground, an official announcement said.

BELIEVED EVACUATION

Allied headquarters did not say whether the formation attacked today was flying north or south. That it was yesterday was confirmed from Tunisia, where it was believed an evacuation of key Axis personnel from the Tunis-Bizerte bridgehead.

American Warhawks, diving close to the sea as a single unit of blazing guns, shot down Spitfires that slashed repeatedly into the Luftwaffe fighter escort, were responsible for one of the greatest aerial triumphs of the war when they destroyed 74 planes in an Axis air convoy flying from Tunisia toward Sicily.

On the Tunisian land front there were aggressive patrol operations

Germans Must Be Taught That They Cannot War Again

LONDON, April 19.—(CP)—Germany must be taught she can no longer be the "mad dog" of Europe, Viscount Bennett, former prime minister of Canada, said today in an address.

Too often, he said, Britain has been willing to make peace with those she had defeated "on terms almost as generous as if they had never gone to war."

"In our desire to be fair to the conquered, we have been unfair to ourselves," he said in addressing the annual meeting of the Primrose League.

Supreme Hour for Canadian Troops May Be Imminent Prime Minister Declares

sweep appears to be narrowing. Against this contention in all areas of conflict we must offset the intensity of the fighting.

"Of the defeat of Italy there can be no doubt whatever. Her colonial empire has already been torn to shreds. Her troops . . . have been slain or captured by the hundreds of thousands. Her shore faces the prospect of invasion at any moment.

"The defeat of Japan is remote but none the le s s a certainty once Germany is defeated.

SUPREME TASK OF WAR

"To destroy the military might of the German war machine remains for the Allied powers the supreme task of the war. That task can be fully ac~omplished only on German soil.

Mr. King stressed the difficulties of invasion of Europe. Seaborne invasion was difficult at best and once bridgeheads were established there would be the tremendous task of maintaining them across dangerous waters.

This was why the Allied powers had determined to make no such effort until it was certain that all sea and air power and facilities necessary for a long struggle were available.

Successful control of the menace of U-boats to convoys from the American arsenals was an essential prelude to any successful invasion of Europe.

It was nearly six months since the American and British forces invaded North Africa and at that time many believed the end of that campaign would be a matter of weeks, but it was not yet ended.

NO SURPRISE ELEMENT

Furthermore, that invasion had been a complete surprise to the enemy. There would be no surprise element in the invasion of Europe except for the places and moments of attack. The enemy has been taking every precaution to meet invasion from any quarter.

"No worse fate could befall an invading force than to find itself opposed by German divisions so vastly superior in numbers that it could not hold its ground.

The most complete foresight and preparation must precede the invasion of Europe, Mr. King said, and it was the duty of all concerned to make sure that "sound judgment is not impaired by impatience, that belief that possibly can be foreseen is left to chance."

That such preparation and prudence even in attack could be carried out had been proven by General Montgomery's advance across Libya to North Africa.

AFRICAN EXAMPLE

"He has never allowed himself to be tempted or hurried into premature action. He has refused to move until every last preparation has been complete. Each time Montgomery has given the word to advance it has been a signal of victory."

In the supreme effort lying ahead it was certain that Canadian fighting men would not fail. "Let us make sure we do not fail them. Let them see how complete the country is behind them," said Mr. King.

"They are prepared to give their all. Let them see that we are prepared to do the same.

"Let us not forget the continued vigilance and endurance of our fighting men. Let us not forget that some of them have been separated from homes and loved ones for nearly four years.

MANY SACRIFICE LIVES

"Let us remember that many have already made the supreme sacrifice, that many have been severely wounded or crippled for life, that many are imprisoned in enemy camps.

"Let us realize that the success of their supreme effort is bound up in what we do for them. Everything we do now, this very month, will save many lives and will count for victory at an earlier day."

Mr. King said the Victory Loan had become "a symbol of private determination and public duty—a symbol which reflects the strength and determination of the Canadian people."

Four years of war effort had broadened Canada's status as a nation with the compass of the United Nations. He asked his listeners to pause on this threshold of a Victory Loan and view Canada from the vantage ground of the years of war.

BECOMES WORLD POWER

"We see Canada emerging from mere nationhood to the position of a world power," he said.

"In this pause of a moment we obtain another, a more significant vision.

"It is as if all Canada, having striven steadily onward and upward under continually increasing burdens for nearly four years, had been brought suddenly to realize that the summit had not yet been reached, and that if everything thus far accomplished is not to fail of ultimate achievement a new effort—a supreme effort—is now necessary."

A maximum national effort had been attained by harmonizing the efforts of Allied powers with the result that Canadian manpower and supplies became a telling part of the total strength of the United Nations.

AIR PLAN ILLUSTRATION

He said there could be no finer illustration of Canada's positive spirit in the war effort than the successful achievements of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

This offered an assurance that Canada will continue to contribute trained fighting airmen to sustain the offensives against Germany, Italy and Japan, until the fate of all three is sealed.

With Canadian airmen sharing in war operations in virtually every theatre, "Canada today is the fourth greatest military air power among the United Nations."

Similarly the swift growth of Canada's naval power, starting virtually from scratch at the beginning of the war, enabled the Dominion to carry nearly half the Atlantic convoy burden and operate in many parts of the world.

NAVAL EXPANSION

When our present program of naval expansion is completed a year hence the personnel of Canada's navy will approximately equal in numbers the personnel of the British navy shortly before the outbreak of war.

Canada's merchant marine too was "making a noble contribution," carrying the essential goods of war through dangerous seas.

After Dunkerque, the Prime Minister said, the Canadian First Division overseas was one of the very few divisions in Britain equipped to fight.

Its presence there, and the arrival soon after of the second division, "made it possible for the British government to send reinforcements to Egypt."

These reinforcements, with other troops from Britain, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and India, "saved the Middle East."

ARMY UNSURPASSED

The first Canadian Army Corps organized at Christmas, 1940, with its armored force and navy had brought its training to a stage of perfection perhaps never exceeded. The first corps now had grown into an army of two corps.

"All the while, at the heart of the world's greatest citadel of freedom, Canada's army has stood guard.

"It has been constantly in readiness to repel the invader. It has been a means of holding in western Europe and of withholding from Russia and Africa, German forces many times its size."

The fact that Canadian forces had been held in Britain as a complete army had been entirely the decision of those charged with strategical direction of the war.

NO RESTRICTIONS

"It has not been because of any restriction imposed by the government of Canada," Mr. King declared. The government's position had been unchanged since the start of the war.

"It is that Canadian forces, in whole or in part, should be used where and when they can make the best contribution to the winning of the war."

More than 190,000 Canadian Army personnel now were in Britain of an active army of more than 450,000.

Of the more than 240,000 soldiers in Canada more than 180,000 had volunteered for service in any theatre. Canadians had already served in far arenas of the war, including Hong Kong, as well as in points adjacent to Canada such as Jamaica, Bermuda, Newfoundland, Labrador, Iceland and Alaska.

"When in the great silence which will follow the defeat of Germany and Japan the thoughts of the world revert to the days when these mighty struggles were challenged, no episodes of chivalry or daring will shine forth more brightly than those which tell of the Canadians at Hong Kong and Dieppe."

COUNTRY "VAST ARSENAL"

To effect a total war effort Canada's economy was transformed until the Dominion became "a vast arsenal," fourth in war production among the United Nations.

Under our policy of mutual aid we are doing everything we can to make sure our munitions and supplies are available in the theatres of war where they are most needed.

"In sending supplies to other nations we are in reality helping to defend our own country." Supplies from Canada were going to China, Russia, Australia and New Zealand as well as to Britain and the United States.

In round numbers, the prime minister said, Canada's armed forces were more than 700,000 which includes 55,000 navy, 200,000 air force, Africa

SUBS SINK 45 SHIPS

London radio said that in the past five weeks British submarines and Allied aircraft had sunk a total of 45 enemy supply vessels in the mediterranean.

Paris radio says that the Germans still were pouring reinforcements into Tunisia by air. A Cairo communique said that more than 100 Axis planes were engaged in the single battle off Tunisia and that 30 probably were destroyed or damaged in addition to 70 shot down.

At the same time, Allied bombers delivered smashing blows against the enemy, raiding Sicily and Sardinia where Flying Fortresses and Mitchell bombers hammered Palermo and Porto Torres, starting big fires, hitting several ships and damaging enemy air fields. Eleven planes were destroyed in scattered actions on Sunday, when 11 Allied craft were lost in all.

The R.A.F. also attacked the Italian port and naval base of Spezia on Sunday night in another stiff blow at the underside of the Axis.

GREATEST SINGLE BATTLE

The sensational attack on the Axis air convoy near Cap Bon, Northern Tunisia, was carried out by the desert air force which put on a show that exceeded any single engagement even in the Battle of Britain. All of the victims were German planes en route from Tunisia to Sicily, possibly carrying some 450,000 army, and in addition to that some 22,000 women in the uniforms of the three forces. These figures excluded the reserve army of "many thousands."

WORK OF R.C.A.F.

Outlining the strength of Canada's fighting forces, Mr. King said the R.C.A.F., in addition to administering the air training plan, had patrolled and protected the approaches to Canada's coasts. It had shared increasingly in action against the enemy.

In North America, Canadian airmen had operated from Newfoundland to Alaska and the Aleutians, in the Far East, in India and Ceylon, in the Middle East, in Palestine, Egypt and Libya. From Malta and the African coasts they had been operating over Italy and the Mediterranean. Canadian squadrons based on Britain had ranged over Germany and enemy-occupied Europe.

Turning to the navy, he said: "Through more than three long and bitter years, whether on destroyers, corvettes, minesweepers, patrol vessels, sub-chasers or other craft, men of the Royal Canadian Navy, in ever-growing numbers, have helped to hold the sea lanes open."

There had been "immense expansion" in the merchant marine as well as the navy. "Ships are being built quickly and as continuously as ships could be found to carry them."

Units of the army were manning coastal and anti-aircraft defences in Canada and providing mobile reserves in the coastal regions. Many thousands more were in training. Units also had served in many parts of the western hemisphere.

Canadian tunnellers were stationed at Gibraltar for more than a year, he said. To gain first-hand battle experience, officers and non-commissioned officers of the Canadian army in Britain had been attached to and were fighting as part of the British First Army in North enemy troops no longer needed in the northeast Tunisian siege war. Fifty-eight JP-52 transports, 13 Messerschmitt 109 and two ME 110s were destroyed in the engagement.

British, Canadian, American and South African pilots took part in the engagement. Nine Allied planes were lost but one pilot was rescued.

The big battle came late in the afternoon when Allied desert air force fighters were waiting for the Junkers transports to attempt a dash to Sicily. Pilots of Warhawks, with Spitfires flying above them, saw what they later described as "an airman's dream."

Before them, flying low over the water, was a big formation of enemy planes. They counted perhaps 100 JP-52s in addition to a strong Nazi fighter escort.

"Like a well-drilled team the Warhawk squadrons dived as a single unit to the attack," an official statement said. "They went slap in among the JP-52s while the Spitfires took the attention of the fighter escort.

"For from the Warhawks kicked up fountains of water as they opened up on the heavy, lumbering transports, many of which turned around and attempted to make land.

"One by one, they went down most of them wreathed in flames. Some hit the sea. Others to escape the fate of their companions deliberately crash landed on the beaches. It was a massacre and the German and Italian fighters could do little to prevent it."

Later in the evening, Allied night fighters roared along the beach and set fire to three of the crashed Junkers.

LOSE SEVEN PLANES

The statement said that the Spitfires were highly successful during the running battle in preventing enemy fighters from striking at the Warhawks.

"It was only when their ammunition was exhausted and their fuel running low that the Warhawks gave up the chase," the statement said. "Our losses in this engagement were seven aircraft."

The aerial fighting Sunday boosted the total of Axis planes destroyed since March 15, when the Mareth line battle began, to more than 600. Lt.-Gen. Carl A. Spaatz said yesterday that 515 enemy craft had been shot down in that period and many others destroyed on the ground.

The only ground activity reported in the communique was a "successful local advance" by French forces on the First Army front some 35 miles west of Tunis. Additional prisoners were captured by the French, the communique said.

LAND ENGAGEMENTS

Latest reports from the front said the main body of Lt.-Gen. Kenneth A. N. Anderson's First Army was locked in a see-saw battle with the Germans for hills behind Djebel El Ahmera "Long Stop hill", six miles north of Medjez el Bab and about 26 miles from Tunis.

On the British Eighth Army front, patrol activity continued along the Enfidaville line some 50 miles south of Tunis, the communique said.

New Warships to More Than Double U.S. Fleet in 1943

SYRACUSE, N.Y., April 19 — (AP)—Navy Secretary Frank Knox said Saturday the United States Navy at the year's end will be augmented by more ships "than comprised the entire fleet at the end of 1942."

Addressing industrialists at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon, Knox said each ship will have a far greater striking power than before the war's end will likely has more than 100 times the striking power against enemy striking from the air."

LONDON, April 19.—(CP)—A Reuter's news agency dispatch from Stockholm said yesterday it was reported in the Swedish capital that German units searching for British parachute troops they believed had been dropped on the Hardanger plateau in southern Norway had fought each other by mistake recently. The dispatch said a number of wounded Germans had been taken to Oslo.

that no damage should result in the mines from the strike.

Any essential work to the safety of the mine reported to the pit committees which the operators can contact at any time will be considered at once. On Saturday a repair crew cared for a weak spot in a mine due to the recent flooding of a creek running close to it.

The strike committee stated officially on Sunday that there is no weakening in the ranks and the 2,015 strikers are standing together as one man. There have been no disturbances and none are expected. Every striker is aware that he is participating in an illegal strike but is determined more than ever to remain out until the issue of the dismissal of Mike Bokos is rectified by placing him back at work.

"FIGHT TO FINISH"

The strikers do not stipulate that he must be at the Star mine from where he was dismissed and his dismissal upheld by Mr. Justice T. M. Tweedie as an independent chairman of the dispute. The men charge that the dismissal of Bokos was that of extreme discrimination and that a highly prized union principle is at stake which they will fight to the finish.

Torpedo Attack on Convoy Is Led by Edmonton Flier

LONDON, April 19.—(CP)—R.A.F. planes pounding at German shipping lashed at an enemy convoy of 15 ships off the Netherlands coast and raided the docks at Dieppe Sunday.

WING COMMANDER HOWARD P. BLATCHFORD, D.F.C.

Beaufighters of the coastal command, escorted by Spitfires, struck at the convoy off the Netherlands coast, laying hits on several vessels and leaving the largest one on fire and listing.

While the Spitfires watched for enemy aircraft, the leading Beaufighters raked the ships with gunfire. Then a fresh wave plunged in with torpedoes.

HIT BY TWO TORPEDOES

The air ministry said the largest ship, a medium-sized merchant vessel, was struck by two torpedoes. Returning pilots said other ships "certainly" were torpedoed.

"It was like having a ringside seat at a world championship fight," said Wing Cmdr. Howard P. Blatchford, D.F.C., of Edmonton, who led the attack. "I saw eight tin fish hit the water and all looked as if they couldn't miss. The biggest ship was hit slap amidships. A shower of water and junk shot up in the air. The ship listed to port and seemed certain to sink."

"We arrived just in time to see one ship with bits and pieces falling from it," said one pilot. "I am sure it was blown 20 feet into the air."

FLAK FAIRLY ACCURATE

"The air was thick with aircraft," another pilot said. "The flak was fairly accurate. I bombed escort ships and saw a big column of smoke pouring from one. Our fighters saw around us beautifully and there was no enemy fighter opposition."

Ventura bombers escorted by fighters attacked the docks at Dieppe yesterday afternoon, carrying on the non-stop aerial offensive in which R.A.F. fighters and fighter-bombers shot up railways and power stations in northwest Germany, France and Holland Saturday night.

Canadians Escort Dieppe Attackers

LONDON, April 19.—(CP)—Spitfires of an R.C.A.F. fighting wing yesterday formed part of the escort for Ventura bombers raiding Dieppe and fighter bombers attacking points in France, two operations similar to those of Saturday when the Spits helped cover daylight attacks on targets in Abbeyville during which they destroyed four enemy aircraft.

Attacks on four transformer stations along the Paris-Le Mans electric railway Saturday night included Flt. Lt. W. W. Flynn of Regina, squadron navigation officer, who guided his wing commander to the small target. Brilliant flashes of blue and green followed bomb hits.

Details of the accord were not immediately disclosed. Authoritative quarters have indicated, however, that it was unlikely Turkey would sign any agreement involving shipments of Turkish chrome—the commodity in which the Germans are most vitally interested.

Supplies For 8th Army Brought Up By Yanks

By NOLAND NORGAARD

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, March 31.—(Delayed)—(AP)—Countless hundreds of tons of supplies awaited Great Britain's 8th Army when, after a history-making advance across North African deserts, it joined hands with United States troops in central Tunisia.

When the American 2nd Army Corps of Lt. Gen. George S. Patton recently rolled southward it seemed to the casual observer the Americans were using a sledge hammer to swat a fly. United States infantry secured a stronghold east of El Guettar on the Gabes road and an armored column smashed through Sened and Maknassy to block the other avenue of attack.

Close behind the army came the greatest fleet of motor transport yet mustered in the Tunisian campaign—hundreds of trucks rolling southward laden with materials the 8th Army would need when it arrived. Long convoys arrived during night and day.

The stores they piled up in a few days would have been a rich prize for Marshal Erwin Rommel and perhaps he knew it, for soon there came a slashing tank assault on United States infantry positions near El Guettar.

It might have won but for the gallantry of the American soldiers who remained at their posts and battled the tanks at point-blank range with every weapon available after the panzer thrust had made a seven-mile penetration into the lines.

That stand saved the dumps created to free Gen. Montgomery from further dependence on supply lines stretching far behind him to Egypt and assured him ready access to material needed for a sustained pursuit of Axis troops retreating northward.

Admiral Horty, Hitler Confer On Defences

LONDON, April 19—(CP)—Admiral Nicholas Horty, regent of Hungary, has concluded a two-day visit to Hitler at the German dictator's headquarters and British quarters last night interpreted the conference as a continued Nazi effort to build military and political defences against a possible Allied invasion of the Balkans.

It was the fourth recent conference of its kind. First, King Boris of Bulgaria was summoned before of Hitler and Mussolini last week the Fuehrer. A four-day conference was followed by a pilgrimage of the Rumanian dictator, Marshal Ion Antonescu, to Germany and Rome.

STRESS "SOLIDARITY"

British circles said the obvious propaganda aim of all the meetings was to create an impression of solidarity and unity of purpose within the Axis.

It is presumed that Hitler increased military demands on Hungary, despite rumors of recalcitrance from the Axis satellite. Reports from Budapest recently have told of the Hungarians withdrawing troops from Russia and laborers from Germany. The Hungarian divisions have been handled roughly on the Soviet front.

British informants speculated that Hitler probably warned Horthy that Hungary could not keep territories it was awarded from Czechoslovakia and Rumania unless the country stands firmly with the Axis.

18,000 Recruits Are Required By Air Cadets

OTTAWA, April 19.—(CP)—Canada's Air Cadet League requires an enrolment this year equivalent to that of 1941 and 1942 combined, it was announced yesterday following a recent meeting of the national executive committee.

"This objective represents something over 18,000 new air cadets in the required classification, all senior cadets who are air-crew fit," said an air force headquarters announcement.

REAL, VITAL NEED

"It is a very real and vital need, vital to Canada and to every Canadian. Canada has already played a big part in gaining air superiority in this war. To maintain that superiority and turn it into complete mastery, we must look to the air cadets—our future flyers of this war and the logical building of Canada in the age of flight that peace will bring."

At the same time it was learned that provision has been made to recognize air cadet training on the enlistment of air cadets in the R.C.A.F.

Rumor No. 1

Whether in malice or muddle, some person started a rumor that Fourth Victory Loan bonds could not be sold by a holder until 1954, and that anyone who buys one of the bonds would have to hold it until that date however badly he might need the money. The story of course was not true. But seemingly it spread, as rumors do in proportion to their absurdity, widely enough to threaten to interfere with the success of the sales campaign. The Minister of Finance has dubbed the yarn as "false, vicious and subversive", and stated in the most explicit language that the new bonds will be saleable on the open market at any time, as all other Dominion bonds are.

So much for Rumor No. 1 set going in advance of the sale. There will be others, no doubt. A more or less sizable flood of them usually gets under way about the time a new bond issue is to be put on the market. Informed persons should be on the watch for these, and do what is possible to squelch them. Cranks we have always with us, and probably a few Nazi sympathizers as well. That these will do their best to prevent the loan being raised is to be supposed. There is no other way they could help Hitler better.

—V—

Storm or Siege?

While most commentators foresee a bloody battle among the mountains of northern Tunisia, Mr. Elmer Davis, director of information at Washington, suggests the Allied campaign to round up the Axis forces there may turn out to be more of a siege than an attempt to take the stronghold area by storm. His guess seems quite as good as the other. The enemy has had plenty of time to fortify and dig in, and turn the defiles into avenues of death for the attackers. That trenches have been dug, roads mined, and guns of all calibre planted, is to be supposed. And Bizerte is said to be a stronger fortress than Singapore.

The one open approach to this fortified zone is by air. The Axis airmen have lost control of the skies, so definitely there is little probability that a protective ceiling can now be placed over the ground troops. Allied planes wheel over the fastnesses at will, blasting airfields, batteries, concentrations, and the cities of Tunis and Bizerte; while the transport bases in Sicily and Sardinia and southern Italy are under steady bombardment and Allied naval craft are active in preventing supply ships crossing the Straits.

The enemy forces seem to be marooned more effectively than the defenders of Stalingrad. Perhaps they will be subjected to the kind of attack the Russians there found it hardest to resist—air bombing and artillery fire.

—V—

From Both Sides

The R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. lost 55 bombers Friday night in two separate raids, one on Mannheim and the other on Pilsen. It was the heaviest night loss the bombing squadrons have yet sustained. Six hundred planes participated in the two attacks, and the loss came fairly close to the 10 per cent deadline. But if the targets were damaged to the usual degree, the price was not excessive. That the destruction was extensive is altogether probable, since 1800 tons of bombs were delivered, the heaviest tonnage ever dumped on Nazi Europe in a single night.

Like Stuttgart, bombed two nights before, the Friday targets are deep in Germany. Mannheim in the upper Rhine region is a centre of war industries, and Pilsen —in Czechoslovakia—is the site of the famous Skoda works. Both, like Stuttgart, are located on railway lines running down to Italy, and the three attacks were blows at the bases and communication lines from and by which munitions were being poured into Italy and Tunisia. The attacks have relation therefore to the fighting in North Africa and the prospective invasion of Mussolini's domain. From British and African air arsenal "pincers" is tightening its grip on Italy, and northern Germany is being subjected to a like squeeze between bombers from Britain and Russia. A month of that kind of team-play should make the Axis "new order" largely an order of junk heaps.

There's Enough to Eat

Kenneth Taylor, food administrator, told a conference of retail merchants at Toronto that there is adequate food for every person in Canada, the problem being to keep the supplies distributed equitably. Except when their judgment is thrown off balance by a temporary scarcity of some commodity or other in the local market, Canadians generally must realize this to be the case. But the state of unbalance is by no means rare. One may hear on the street every day expressions which indicate a fear that the country is in a bad way for "eats".

That is sheer nonsense. Of course there are commodity scarcities, caused generally by heavy export to countries where food is really lacking, and in this part of the Dominion by a heavy increase in the regional demand. But commodity scarcities do not mean food scarcity. If the meat supply is below normal, the bread supply is mountainous. If butter has to be rationed, there is plenty of cheese. So all along the list. We cannot always get the things we would like, but there is always an ample supply of nourishing food available.

In this matter of food Canadians are a bit "choosey". We have always been able to buy anything we wanted and could pay for. The idea of having to cut down foods food item and eat something else is foreign to our experience—and of course to our inclinations.

Hitler, however, has imposed a new order of things upon us, and there is nothing it is but make the best of it. Railing at the officials for telling us which foods must be conserved does no good. If they didn't tell us, we would fare far worse. Despite Hitler, there is plenty in the country to eat—and maybe a few changes in diet will be good for most of us.

—V—

The British House of Commons took only three days to discuss the budget, the biggest in the country's history. The budget brought down at Ottawa is also the biggest ever presented there; but at that point the records cease to run parallel.

—V—

Those who fear that two pounds of meat per week will not meet their needs are assured that the ration amount was decided by a committee of nutrition experts. Tastes differ widely, and while the two pounds may not appease some appetites, less than this amount is ordinarily consumed by many people. The experts do not say that everybody will be satisfied with the ration, but they say it is enough to meet the actual need.

Premier Tojo is making an official visit to the puppet state of Manchukuo, to look over Japanese military establishments and political operations in that Chinese territory facing Russia's far eastern province. A year ago his tour would have filled the world with speculation about a Japanese attack on Siberia. Now it arouses no such apprehension, for Japan has trouble enough without tangling with the bear. That is one front on which the other Allies have taken the weight off Russia.

The Saturday Night Review

By HAROLD L. WEIR

This broadcast, as you will readily understand, must necessarily be a sketchy salmagundi of reflection rather than an ordered review of world affairs.

For I know of no place in the universe, except, perhaps, the graveyard, where one withdraws so far from the alarms and excursions of humanity as from a hospital bed. That bed, indeed, becomes the highest throne of egotism. Life passes by in turbulent streams on either side, leaving the occupant magnificently aloof in the melancholy contemplation of his own misery.

Harold L. Weir

In fact, no absolute monarch, I do believe, ever become so pleasurably absorbed in his own anointed person as does the hospitalized invalid who is annointed, not with oil, but with the stinking compounds of the apothecary.

The ebb and flow of war's fortunes—like the fortunes of a planet-wide war—shrink into insignificance beside the waxing and waning of one's own temperature.

And sometimes the vexations of a common utensil become a more poignant symbol of mortality than the enslavement of a nation.

Cloistered

In every truth, then, a hospital becomes a little cloistered world of its own.

There is no bulletin posted in such places dealing with the condition of the inmates. Indeed, one's curiosity in regard to the ailments of one's fellow martyrs is sharply discouraged. Nevertheless, one knows the nature of what is some occult way. And so, to the hospitalized person, the great question of the day is not the fortunes of General Montgomery, but the victory gained over the Grim Reaper by the patient in the case down the corridor. The gout of your good neighbor in the next room is infinitely more important than an air raid on the Rhineland.

Why all this should be so, I have only the vaguest notion. I only embark on the tedium of this explanation to show why I couldn't possibly plunge, on this occasion, into the intricacies of global war or world politics.

I am still woolgathering in a world which is limited to the individual. I will not say that this is a small world, because, perhaps it is the biggest world of all.

Formula

At any rate, out of this highly restricted world, if you like, I have conjured up this reflection:

That, in spite of all the experts and all the statements all the economists, we have still failed to hit upon that formula which will convince the free peoples of the United Nations together when this war is over.

We have been looking for something rather grandiose and complex, along this line. We have been forever seeking the talisman that we must produce some kind of an elaborate political, economic and social structure that the peoples of the earth to dwell in.

This obsession, of course, is at the bottom of the many disputes that have been lately cast at Russia. And we are gradually dividing ourselves, in a most stupid and unhealthy manner, into two groups in this regard. The first group prays that the doctrine which apparently gave a new virility to the Russian armies and the Russian people may, in some way or other, overtake us and give us a new virility too, or at least a basis of welfare upon which the post-war world may be built.

The other group prays, just as fervently, that this new Russian virility may not overtake us in another and more sinister way.

Now, both these views, I think, involve the most absurd kind of speculation.

Fundamentals

For the western world to regard Russian communism as either a hope or a threat is to disregard the fundamentals of the whole affair.

It would be ridiculous to deny that something in the new Russian order has developed a new spirit upon the Russian people. But it would be equally ridiculous to affirm that the peculiar virility of Russia is either the panacea for our poor or the poison for our plutocrats.

To think that the Russian experiment could be repeated on this continent is to assume that all men are cast in a common mould.

All men are cast in a common mould so far as many human likenesses are concerned. But no men are cast in a common mould in a political way. If we were all of one political likeness there would not be four or five or six distinct political parties in Canada. And long before Communism could be adopted as the political denominator of the United Nations, we would be treated to the intoxicating spectacle of the Communists and the C.C.F.ers locked in a loving embrace—which, as Euclid might have said, is pretty damned absurd.

It seems to me that we will have to search in deeper and more profound than politics for that structure of unity wherewith we hope to preserve the peace of the post-war world.

One political harness will no more fit 26 different nations than one size of shirt will fit all men.

Well, then, where are we going to look for that common denominator of unity?

Human Ties

As I pointed out at the beginning, I am in no frame of mind for the subtle discussion of world politics. But I do think, in my chastened simplicity, that I can give a hint.

What is the single thing that binds us to General Charles de Gaulle while the political efforts of other French patriots leave us cold? It is this:

That when the Germans began to swallow up Europe, de Gaulle was the only Frenchman of prominence who said "I won't quit".

There is a bond more tangible and lasting than anything the politicians or economists or sociologists can devise. And it is just a simple bond of the spirit.

What is it that has held the British and Canadian and American peoples together all these years while their governments have quarrelled and jockeyed each other?

Well, I don't exactly know. But it was a human thing and not a political thing. May I read to you a few lines from an essay by Alexander Woollcott which I believe has a pertinent bearing on the subject? Woollcott is writing about the fellowship of those who admire Charles Dickens. He says:

"There has been nothing in the world quite like the sheer fraternity of his fellowship since the novels of Charles Dickens were new. When David Copperfield was first appearing a few chapters at a time each month in the instalment bound as a slim green pamphlet, there would be a considerable dropping in of neighbor's house, one afternoon late in 1850, that someone read her the fateful number just off the boat from England, which reads:

"He led me to the shore. And on that part of the shore she and I had looked for shells, with the children—on that part of it where some lighter fragments of the old home lay. Ruins of the home he had wrongedand she and I, with his head upon his arm, as I had often seen him lie at school.

"She caught her breath and ran home through the twilight with the news, the heart-breaking news, that Steerforth was dead."

That's it. That's the sort of thing that builds unity between peoples, not treaties and economic arrangements.

I can't say, for the life of me, how we are going to build that sort of unity between the peoples of 26 nations. But we've got to do. If we don't, heaven help us.

Egotism

Now I am heavily conscious that these scattered and vagrant thoughts must be devastatingly tedious. For, as you see, I am still under the spell of the essential egotism of the hospital bed. And the most terrible thing about egotism is not only its cold, callous cruelty, but its infinite capacity to inflict boredom.

I am not enormously concerned over the fact that I have made involved in a personal diatribe on this is. Taste and tact, those twin graven images of a sterile respectability, were never for me in very much. But I do think that boredom is the most despicable weapon of the ingrown egotist. And I should hate to think I was inflicting it upon you too mercilessly. So, mercifully, I shall now say but two things I feel I must say in conclusion.

First, I should suffer in my self-esteem if I should fail, at this time and in this place at which and from which I have an opportunity to you, to acknowledge my humble thanks to Almighty God for his unspeakable mercies to me, the chief—well—almost the chief of sinners.

Secondly, I would be most arrantly ungrateful to fail to express my cordial appreciation of all the kindness that has been shown me by Canadians, and by Edmonton, for the scores of messages and calls and good wishes that have been showered upon my undeserving self.

Warm Heart

I had often heard that Edmonton possessed a warm and generous heart. Now I know it for myself. To me how warm and generous that heart can be.

I hope it is maintained and preserved far into the future. For no matter what fortune and civic greatness destiny may shake into your lap, this warm heart of yours will always be your most priceless possession.

Thirdly, I wish here to say that I shall never forget the care and attention I received in the University Hospital. The days I spent in this city have an excellent repute. I can only speak of one. But for that one, I can add mine expression of my grateful admiration.

It is both a great and an unusual achievement to combine the finest of scientific skill with the tenderness of a broad humanity. That is a rare combination. And it seems to me, this perfect combination of head and heart.

The hardest part of a hospital, I believe, is its nurses. And I have a few words I wish to say to nurses. Not just the kind that gave me such splendid and unstinting care, but to nurses everywhere.

Yours is the most magnificent profession in the earth. Nothing has never been anything like it since the foundation of the world.

To you it may sometimes dreary and routine and drudgery. Doubtless, at times, it becomes all three.

Comfort

But it is no small thing to bring the deft touch of comfort to those who are in pain. It is no small thing to be the bearer of hope, the symbol of hope to those who are frightened and suffering and forlorn.

Yours is a profession that calls for high ability. There are many things you must be able to do. No doubt many you must be able to do. No dullard may wear the halo of the white cap.

Yours is a profession that calls for a tremendous capacity for compassion. You may think that your tenderness has become mechanical. But the patient knows better. And that is his most precious solace, the feeling that those hands which smooth his pillow and minister to his comfort are animated by a pitying and a lovely heart.

These high qualities, then, make up the equipment of a nurse.

But there is something more, a higher attribute, a spiritual factor that, I fear, we are wont to forget.

Nursing is an act of worship. Our Lord Himself lies on every bed of pain.

"Then shall the righteous answer him saying, Lord, when saw we thee hungered and fed thee? or thirsty, and gave thee drink? When saw we thee a stranger and took thee in? Or when saw we thee sick and came unto thee?"

"And the King shall answer and say unto them, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me".

Mr. Weir broadcasts every Saturday night at 8:15 over radio station CFRN (1260 Kc.)

Willie had been sent out into the garden to look after his baby brother. Suddenly mother was aware that the baby was crying.

"Do stop baby crying, and give him what he wants," she called out.

"Willie, I told you to give baby what he wants!" shouted mother.

"I did, mother; but the bee stung him!" replied Willie.

SIDE GLANCES

"It's the cheapest Easter hat I ever bought! Funny thing—when we finally get a bit of money saved up, it's no longer good taste to make a splurge!"

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Thomas J. Watson, irrepressible head of the International Business Machines, who has received more foreign decorations than almost any man in America, has got himself into international trouble. The Treasury has demanded that he pay up around $350,000 after 1937 under circumstances which affect not only Watson's pocketbook, but thousands of U.S. merchant seamen.

Drew Pearson

Watson waited until just a few hours before the Treasury deadline and then filed a petition with the Treasury contesting its tax claims.

Watson's tax difficulties arose while he was president of the International Chamber of Commerce in 1937 and was out of the country for what he contended was more than a year. He spent most of his time abroad on Chamber of Commerce matters and on what he told his stockholders were efforts to sell business machines in Europe. Among other things, incidentally, he received a medal from Adolf Hitler, which he later asked Secretary Hull to return.

When the year 1937 was over, Watson reported to the Treasury that he had been absent from the U.S.A. six months plus a few hours over. He had it all figured down to the last minute. Under Treasury ruling 116A a man who has been absent for more than six months gets a substantial tax reduction.

Interesting Things

However, when Internal Revenue experts began to probe closely into Watson's operations they discovered some interesting things. In May and June 1937 he took six trips out of the United States, carefully estimating the exact number of hours he was away.

Then after some travel in Europe, he came back to the United States. But in December, 1937, just as the tax year was about to close, he reported he went to Canada again.

However, when long-nosed Hugh McGuire, New York's chief Internal Revenue investigator, began to pry into the matter, he found that Watson had signed the minutes of the Directors' Meeting of The Federal Reserve Bank of New York, held at the very same time Watson said he was in Canada.

As a result, the treasury is now collecting for the supposed absence of six months.

Ruling Changed

Another result is that the Treasury has now changed ruling 116A, so that in order to get a deduction for six months' absence, a taxpayer must be out of the country six months consecutively. He cannot commute back and forth a few days in Mexico and Canada and add them all together.

This research hunting has chiefly hit several thousand seamen, who in peace times escaped paying income taxes by working from New York to Galveston or to Los Angeles so many trips that it added up to a total of six months.

Note: Though Charles Bedeaux generally got credit for inviting the Duke of Windsor to the United States several years ago, he is understood to have acted on behalf of Thomas Watson.

Financing Aluminum Industry

Shipshaw One of Greatest Assets of United Nations

By B. T. RICHARDSON

OTTAWA—The sequence of events by which the Shipshaw development of the Aluminum Company of Canada came into being was explained recently in parliament by Hon. C. D. Howe, minister of munitions and supply. As aluminum production by this company is obviously one of the greatest assets of the United Nations in a war in which light metals for aircraft and other purposes play a crucial part. It has spent $236,800,000 in expansion of its operations since 1937, including nearly $70,000,000 for the great Shipshaw power station, and the Canadian government has allowed it special depreciation of 55 per cent. on its power development, 70 per cent. on its new aluminum capacity, or 60 per cent. of the total cost.

The total depreciation allowed is $154,500,000, or 65 per cent. of its wartime expansion, which it has provided out of its own resources, by borrowing or by obtaining advances from the government, which method by which the company is allowed to recover its capital, up to the 65 per cent., is by setting aside five cents a pound for the metal it sold. On this basis, its present war contracts appear to be for 204,000,000 pounds, on which at the rate of 16 cents per pound in Canada is worth $494,400,000.

Pre-war aluminum capacity in Canada, owned by the Aluminum Company of Canada, was about 100,000,000 pounds annually. Early in 1937, for instance, were 97,000,000 pounds. The company increased its capacity to 200,000,000 pounds in 1938, and to 200,000,000 pounds in 1939. Canadian exports of bar, rod and billet rose to 60,000,000 lbs. in 1938, and to 141,100,000 pounds in 1939. Then in 1940, the British government loaned the company, on a 2½ per cent. basis, the sum of $25,000,000 to finance further expansion. Capacity was brought up to 435,000,000 pounds.

The Canadian government was not involved in this transaction in any way, Mr. Howe told parliament. But at this stage the question of providing sufficient power to operate the expanding Arvida aluminum plant came to the fore. A subsidiary power company of the Aluminum company owned power stations at Ile Maligne and at Chute a Caron on the Saguenay. The company got power from the Shawinigan system and from the Beauharnois and the Montreal Light, Heat and Power systems. The demands for power to operate metallurgical processes are enormous. Mr. Howe took up with the Aluminum Company the question of completing the Shipshaw project of which Chute a Caron is the first stage. At a cost of almost $70,000,000, the company went ahead and it is now bringing into operation, unit by unit, a power development that will reach 1,500,000 horsepower capacity.

This is obviously a development warranted only as a war project, for the company always has access to power from its Saguenay plants in peacetime. It will take some years to find markets for that amount of power when the aluminum production tapers off after the war. The extra aluminum capacity itself will not be difficult, or even more difficult, to find markets for. That is the justification for allowing substantial write-offs.

To provide the funds to finance its expansion of aluminum capacity, the company obtained advance payments and borrowed money in the United States and Britain. The advances obtained were $68,500,000 from the Metal Reserve Corporation of the United States, about $12,000,000 from the British government, and about $4,000,000 from the Australian government. Total cost of plant expansion was $117,000,000 at Arvida, not including the pre-1940 extensions. Since these advance payments would be subject to income and excess profits tax, the Canadian government allowed the tax adjustment.

In 1940 the British government was buying aluminum from the company at 20 cents a pound. In 1941, the United States government bought at 17 cents a pound, the prevailing price in Canada and the United States. Later the price was agreed at 15 cents a pound in U.S. currency and 16 cents in Canadian currency. As shown by Mr. Howe, the profit on the aluminum company is disposed of in these ratios: 80 per cent. to Metals Reserve Corporation of the United States, one American and Canadian demand; 15 per cent. to the British government, and five per cent. to Australia.

Not all the company's capital expenditures have been made at Shipshaw. The company went ahead on its expansion program since 1937, amounting to $236,800,000, the sum of $15,000,000 has been expended at Kingston, Ont., a large plant and sheet and tube mill.

The Aluminum company has met all its delivery dates, Mr. Howe told parliament, and in case of a surplus it was sent to Australia, where the possibility of future interruptions in deliveries exist. In a war factor, the vast Aluminum company's developments in Canada have been of incalculable value. The record of this expansion, set out on the records of parliament, is one of the fascinating dramas of industrial mobilization in this country under the pressure of war. But it will also be a giant factor in the future age of light metals, and on this ground the development has already been criticized in the United States. American power and aluminum facilities. Representative John Coffee of Washington recently warned that they would not compete with the Canadian output because the latter will have recovered much of its fixed charges during the war and will therefore be able to produce cheaply in the face of any competition in the world.

An Apocalyptic Valley of Death

By ILYA EHRENBOURG
Soviet War Correspondent
Written for the British United Press

Gzhatsk, Russia, still is marked on the map, but it is a town that was.

It is an apocalyptic valley of death.

The snow has vanished, like bandages from a healed wound, and the scorched earth lies exposed.

The Germans came here 17 months ago and found a comfortable, peaceful community. They plundered and enslaved. They left death and ruin.

As I write this in a little house, which by some miracle survived among the ruins, there lies before me on the table a printed notice from the Germans, addressed to Olga Stolyarova.

"Gzhatsk, Feb. 17, 1943," it is headed.

"You are to bring your cow with you to-morrow at 8 a.m. to the assembly point. Failure to comply with this order is death by shooting. Signed, Military Commandant."

A similar order was sent to all those who still remained in Gzhatsk. Of the 28,000 cows in the town herds, only 240 remained when the Red Army re-entered.

It isn't the pillaging however, that matters so much, it is the inhuman killing of the whole district. Olga Stolyarova's husband used to work in the Gzhatsk post office until the Germans sent him to a concentration camp where he died of typhus. His widow had only Petya, their 13-year-old son left. Last Feb. 15 she heard the rumor that the Germans were driving the town's children into captivity.

Frantic wanderer that she was to save him, she first mixed him in the snow. Then afraid that he might freeze, she dug him out again. Olga Stolyarova hid her son in the hay. But the Germans later thrust their bayonets into it, found Petaya, and took him away.

On March 4, the enemy entered the streets of Gzhatsk before the Germans left. The enemy, tearing children from their mothers who pleaded vainly for mercy, drove away girls and boys and little children to the west in scenes which recalled slave-trading days.

Before the war Gzhatsk's population was 15,000. When the Germans left there were only 1,000. From this town alone, the Germans drove away 6,000 human beings, more than half of whom were children.

Huge Bombers Cross Alps to Attack Spezia lessen the possibility of any Axis "Dunkirk" evacuation from Tunisia.

British fighters and fighter-bombers joined in the night's offensive from English bases with attacks on freight train locomotives in north France and enemy destroyers at Lorient on the French Atlantic coast. One fighter was lost.

DESTROYER HIT

Smoke was observed rising from one destroyer at Lorient after a Beaufighter raked it with cannon fire. Altogether, nine freight trains were attacked in North France. One locomotive blew up.

German planes made retaliatory raids on southeast England last night, presumably for propaganda purposes, but they were so feeble that no one was injured and only slight damage was reported. Two air raid alarms were sounded in London during the night, but only slight damage was reported.

The British raid on Spezia was the fourth of the war, the last previous one having occurred Tuesday night, and boosted the total tonnage of bombs dropped by British, Canadian, American and Russian bombers on Europe this year past the 35,000-mark, observers said.

The night attacks followed British daylight raids yesterday on the docks at Dieppe on the French channel coast, airdromes in North France and shipping off the Dutch coast.

WEEK-LONG OFFENSIVE

The Allied offensive against Europe now has been operating around-the-clock for more than a week, climaxed by the 600-plane British-Canadian double assault on the German arms centre of Mannheim and Pilsen Friday night and a record American attack on the Focke-Wulf factory at Bremen, Germany, in daylight Saturday.

An American communique last night announced that reconnaissance photographs of Bremen disclosed that American bombs destroyed or heavily damaged half the factory buildings at the Focke-Wulf plant. The two largest assembly shops appeared to have suffered exceptionally heavy damage, a large hangar was destroyed and the boiler house and paint shop were damaged badly.

Sixteen four-engined bombers were lost in the Bremen raid, but more than 50 intercepting Focke-Wulf fighters were destroyed.

Little Interest In Chicago Pit

CHICAGO, April 19—(AP)—With interest in the market light, grain futures marked time today. An early upturn in oats and rye was lost when wheat failed to follow the advance. A strong Winnipeg wheta market had no influence on the bread cereal locally.

Bombs Shatter Quiet of North As Ice Is Hit

HIT OBJECTIVE

On Saturday the four bombs dropped were observed to strike accurately at the points aimed.

Sunday, the eight bombs were dropped in twos. The second bomb's fuse in each case was timed to explode a second later than the first, therefore penetrating deeper into the ice mass.

Monday the bomber plane, loaded with additional bombs, was standing by at Edmonton airport ready to take off for further attacks on ice jams that might develop.

The bombing operations were under the command of Maj. Paul E. Greiner, of Butte, Montana, a senior bomber pilot, who is chief assistant to Lt.-Col. Frank N. Nightingale, acting officer in command of the Alaskan Wing of the U.S. Army Air Force Transport Command.

BOMBER CREW

The bomber crew was as follows: Pilot, First Lt. Arthur D. Rhodes; co-pilot, Flight Officer S. Davitt; Bombardier, 2nd Lt. R. A. Hoggett; and Crew Chief, Staff Sergeant Olen St. John.

Monday morning reports from the threatened area at McMurray and Waterways were that the chief danger of a serious flood seemed to have passed with ice moving freely down the Athabaska.

On Saturday, when the water rose to 19 feet, some buildings on the lower flats were flooded. The water was aid to have flooded the lower floor of the hotel at McMurray.

SOME DAMAGE

Northern Alberta Railways reported some damage to spur tracks, but workmen cleared away the flood effects in a short time and normal service has been restored, N.A.R. officials here reported.

C.P. Air Lines Ltd., reported an ice jam in the snye, where a seaplane base of the company is established. Buildings for the most part had been moved back from lower flats. It was not known early Mnoday if any buildings or equipment of the company had suffered damage.

The bombing of the ice jam on the Athabasca was carried out by permission of the Canadian government, at the request of Brig. Gen. J. A. O'Connor, officer commanding the Northwest Service Command of United States Army Engineers, with headquarters at Whitehorse in the Yukon.

Question Motive For Executions

LONDON, April 19—(CP)—The Polish national council stated Saturday it did "not believe the motives given" by the Russians for shooting the Polish Jewish labor leaders, Henryk Ehrlich and Victor Alter.

The Russians said they had "been found guilty of hostile activity against the Soviet government, including appeals to Soviet troops to stop bloodshed and conclude peace with Germany."

The council, a parliamentary group of the Polish government in London, published a resolution questioning the Russian motives for executing the two. It followed a Polish communique issued saying Red Cross aid was sought in the investigation of the reported disappearance of more than 15,000 Polish officers, soldiers and civilians from three prison camps in Russia from 1939 to 1941.

The Polish demand for an explanation followed a German report that the graves of 10,000 Polish officers had been found near Smolensk.

600 Jap Troops Killed by Chinese In Sharp Battle

CHUNGKING, April 19—(AP)—Chinese troops killed 600 Japanese in sharp fighting southeast of the Yangtse river port of Ichang in Hupeh province when the Japanese threw 7,000 troops against Chinese positions, dispatches from the front said today.

The Japanese scored an advance after sending 3,000 shells into the Chinese positions within a few hours, but later were thrown back to their original line, the dispatch said.

'Shangri-La' Bases for Tokyo Raid Revealed as Aircraft Carriers

Copyright, 1943, by British United Press

The "Shangri-La" bases from which Maj.-Gen. James H. Doolittle and 79 other American fliers took off in U.S. army bombers to raid Japan one year ago Sunday were aircraft carriers, a British United Press dispatch from North Africa disclosed today.

The dispatch, passed by censors at Allied North African headquarters, dealt with the present activities of Doolittle's raiders and was the first report from authentic Allied sources as to the place or places from which the historic flight began.

Written by British United Press war correspondent Donald Coe from a North African strategic air force base, the dispatch began:

"Eleven of the men who flew Mitchell bombers from aircraft carriers to bomb Tokyo. . . . ."

That told the story. The rest of Coe's dispatch, dated April 17, concerned speculation whether the fliers would be able to get together from various North African fields for an anniversary celebration.

SPIKES PREVIOUS BELIEF

The dispatch appeared to spike a widespread belief that the fliers took off either from the Aleutian Islands off the western tip of Alaska or from bases in China. More accurate apparently was a Japanese naval statement made several days after the raids on Tokyo, Nagoya, Osaka and Kobe that the planes came from two or possibly three carriers in a task force in the North Pacific.

The Japanese estimated the size of the task force at "more than 10 ships" and suggested that the North American Mitchell bombers took off from the carriers at a point about 1,200 miles east and slightly north of Yokohama—about halfway between Yokohama and Dutch Harbor in the Aleutians.

The plan was said to have been for the planes to fly over Japan at dawn, drop their bombs and land on Chinese air fields in Chekiang province, southwest of Shanghai. The fact that the raid was staged at noon instead of dawn was attributed to the sighting of the task force by Japanese fishing ships.

JAPANESE BELIEF

Japanese naval authorities suggested that the American commander believed the fishing boats might have radioed word of the task force's presence to the Nipponese high command and decided to launch planes immediately rather than risk action against superior Japanese forces.

Subsequent Japanese statements asserted that all the American planes were lost, most of them in forced landings along the China coast due to bad weather. None was shot by the Japs, however.

The Japanese claimed to have captured a number of the fliers who landed in occupied China and the war department last October acknowledged that the eight men whose names correspond with those broadcast by the Japanese were "understood to be missing."

One bomber was forced down in Siberia after losing its bearings. Its crew, believed a captain and four other men, was interned.

Doolittle was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor by President Roosevelt for organizing and leading the raid and the 79 other participants were given the Distinguished Flying Cross.

F.R.D.'s LABEL

It was President Roosevelt who at a press conference in Washington suggested that the bombers were based on "Shangri-La," a mythical place in James Hilton's novel "Lost Horizon."

Nothing further as to the whereabouts of the bombers' base or bases was mentioned by any official American source until last Wednesday, when Director Elmer Davis of the office of war information told reporters in Washington that an army report revealing the location of "Shangri-La" and other details would be made public in a few days."

On Friday, however, Davis said that "clearance had not been completed" on the report and it was impossible to predict when it would be released."

War News Summary

MONDAY, APRIL 19

Tunisia: Allied forces, preparing for overwhelming assault on the mountain-walled stronghold of Marshal Erwin Rommel in Tunisia, were reported by Axis sources to be engaged in hard-hitting ground action today as an Allied headquarters communique announced that 58 more of Germany's aerial freight cars had been destroyed by United Nations airmen.

The Paris radio, German-controlled, said ground fighting raged along the road from Pont du Fahs to Tunis, a strategic sector where a break-through would threaten the turning of Rommel's Enfidaville positions to the southeast, and the Italians announced in their communique that "more intense fighting" had developed with Allied attempts to infiltrate into Axis positions.

Air War: The R.A.F. from Britain spanned the Alps for the second attack in six nights on the Italian naval base of Spezia, losing but one bomber.

Russia: The Germans stiffened their infantry forces in the Kuban area of the Caucasus to checkmate a determined Russian offensive to push them into the Black Sea, and air forces fought large-scale battles, but the long front was generally unchanged.

Battle of Atlantic: The Berlin radio asserted that a large Axis auxiliary warship—presumably a surface raider—had sunk a merchant ship near Fortaleza on Brazil's north coast, a report unconfirmed by any Allied source.

Pacific: Japanese positions in the Aleutians were raided 10 times in the latest forays by American planes, the United States Navy announced.

American Fliers Battering at Japs On Pacific Bases

WASHINGTON, April 19—(AP)—American fliers, battering the Japanese in the Solomons, damaged two enemy cargo vessels, probably sinking one, and started big fires at the enemy base at Kahili, the navy department said today.

At the same time, other bombers striking at Kiska nine times in one day scored hits in the camp and hangar area, destroyed one unidentified building, knocked out gun positions and straffed three beached planes at the Japanese outpost in the Aleutians.

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

SPORTS EDITOR

IT IS now fairly evident that had "Busher" Jackson been able to make the trip to Vancouver, No. 3 "M" Depot Red Devils would have been practically a cinch to take the western basketball final with an excellent chance for the Dominion title.

Jackson has been a consistent scorer all season, invariably coming through with his quota of points and always being one of the important cogs in the operations of the "big five." In the first game against Saskatoon R.C.A.F. he led his team with 12 points, but of course missed the second. He was high man in the series opener with Raymond Union Jacks, scoring 23 points, and he collected nine more in the second.

Aside from the fact that his not being able to make the trip has proven a serious handicap to the team, the enforced sojourn in the hospital also did "the Busher" out of a chance to visit his home city Victoria—just about the same as having four personals chalked up before the start of a game.

GIRLS LEAD THREE TO TWO

THE girls hold a majority vote in the Lenny Goldsworthy household today. With the arrival of a nice new 7 lb. 3 oz. daughter on Saturday, the girls (parents included) are now holding a three to two lead.

And by the way, rumor has it that the former N.H.L. hockey star may be inveigled back into baseball this season. Last summer "Goldie" was assistant golf pro at Jasper and for the two previous seasons he had charge of golf out at Elk Island course, which naturally precluded his taking any interest in baseball.

This year the situation is somewhat different. Now that his business connections necessitate his staying in his home city, Goldsworthy might once again succumb to the lure of the diamond. A baseball star in his own right, including several seasons in the Northern League, "Goldie" would be a valuable addition to local ball circles.

HERE AND THERE . . .

DODGERS and Aircraft Repair of the senior baseball circuit both held workouts yesterday, both having about 15 in attendance. Bud Corcoran's Dodgers did their deskinking at the Stadium, while Al Bertrand watched his Hornets go through their paces at golf links diamond.

Fastball teams will get down to more intensive drill at Kingsway Park this week. No. 3 "M" Depot of the senior men's loop and South Side Athletics of the girls' league start tonight and Aircraft Repair teams work out on Tuesday. Army and Navy girls have Kingsway for Thursday at 7:30.

All city golf clubs were busy yesterday, as the warmest day of the year proved a strong incentive for some form of outdoor relaxation. Highlands Club was officially opened for the season and Norman Miller got away to a good start with a hole-in-one at Rupert and he has three witnesses to prove it too . . . Jim Sangster, Sam Sladen and Bill Forbes.

Rangers Spring Surprise 6-5 Defeat on Oshawa Generals

Winnipeg Takes First of Junior Finals

Western Club Nets Four in Second Period

TORONTO, April 19 — (CP)—The fleet Winnipeg Rangers sped to a surprising 6-5 triumph over Oshawa's Generals Saturday night in the opening game of the best-of-seven series for the Memorial Cup and the junior hockey championship of the Dominion.

While the Generals scored two goals in the first period and got two more in the first half of the third, they weren't really rolling in high gear until the closing minutes of the game when they cut loose with a powerful attack which produced one goal and only fell short of equalizing the score because of the spectacular play of Doug (Stonewall) Jackson in the Winnipeg nets.

The two teams, who meet here tonight in the second game of the series, maintained a dazzling pace all the way and the 12,739 fans were kept in an uproar.

The Generals, weakened by the absence through injuries of winger Floyd Curry who may be out of action for the series, went into an early lead on a brace of first period goals scored by Chuck Scherza.

The first was set up by defenceman F. Bennett who stickhandled his way into the Winnipeg defence zone before passing to the right. Don Batten the only Oshawa native son to take part in the game, made the play for the other. He returned from serving a penalty in the midst of a Winnipeg power play and joined with Scherza in a goal-getting flash.

AC2 Eddie Coleman, a member of the R.C.A.F., provided the assist for Winnipeg's first-period goal, with defenseman Bill Boorman firing the puck into the net.

Cal Gardner started the Rangers' second-period outburst on the first play. Taking the puck from the face-off he weaved right through to whip the puck past Harvey Bennett.

Coleman got the first of his two goals on a play with his linemates, Church Russell and Mickey McDonald. His second was scored unassisted after a sensational bit of stickhandling inside the Oshawa blue line. Russell got the Rangers' fourth of the period, assisted by Coleman and McDonald.

Blond Ronald Nelson put Oshawa back in the game with a disputed goal in the third period, getting the puck into the net on a headlong rush in which he followed it right into the goal. The Winnipeg team disputed the goal vigorously and there were roars of disapproval from the fans.

Russell tallied for Winnipeg on a neat backhand shot with Coleman getting the assist. Nelson got his second of the game midway through the period. Eddie Reigle getting the assist. Ken Smith scored on Nelson's assist with less than two minutes to go as the Oshawa team turned on the heat. There were 16 penalties. Batten drew two in the first period for tripping while Ben Juzda, member of Bill of National Hockey League fame, got one for boarding. Russ Johnstone and Gardner were penalized for high-sticking in the second.

Pacific Coast Ball League Attracts 40,000 to Openers

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19.—(AP)—The Pacific Coast League got off to a good start on its 1943 baseball season Sunday when 40,000 fans paid their way to opening games in four California cities.

It was a victory for the club owners even to get the season started, and the size of the crowds and the relatively good brand of baseball played gave them the idea that maybe 1943 will be a successful year in spite of the war.

Portland's Beavers, last season's cellar dwellers, lived up to advance notices by licking the 1942 champion, Sacramento, 5-2, at Sacramento before a crowd of approximately 6,000.

The biggest crowd of the day was at San Francisco, where the Seals won a 2-0 victory over Hollywood before almost 16,000 fans.

In Los Angeles, the hometown Angels came from behind to beat Oakland, 9-8, before 12,000 spectators.

At San Diego, 6,000 fans saw some mid-season pitching form as the San Diego Padres beat Seattle 2-1 in 11 innings.

There will be no night games in the Pacific Coast League this season as dimout regulations prevents use of the floodlights.

Second Woman Jockey Licensed

BALTIMORE, Md., April 19—(AP)—Judy Johnson, 29, of Washington, D.C., second woman in the United States to hold a license to train race horses, became the first of her sex in Maryland racing history to be made a bona fide professional rider when the Maryland Racing Commission Saturday granted her a steeplechase jockey's licence. She is believed to be the first woman in the United States to be granted a jockey's licence.

Mob Scenes Enacted as Glasgow Crowd Rushes Gates

GLASGOW, April 19.—(CP)—Mob scenes believed unprecedented in British sporting history marred Saturday's international soccer match here in which England defeated Scotland 4-0 to gain its fifth victory in nine wartime starts. The crowd was announced as 105,000, 3,000 more than the police limit for Hampden Park, but observers said it was closer to 140,000.

When this wartime record throng rushed the gates as they opened hundreds were caught and jostled in the jam and 66 spectators were treated for minor injuries, including several who were hurt climbing the fences surrounding the stadium. One middle-aged woman died of a heart ailment while watching the game. There were many fainting cases.

Admission was not limited to ticket-holders as is the custom in this matches held in London. Only 14,000 or so were seats sold and the rest of the grounds were thrown open to the public through admission turnstiles.

Thousands of persons who had walked miles arrived at the park an hour before the game to find the gates closed and a mass of humanity clamoring for admission. A group of soldiers helped each other over the 10-foot fence and within a few minutes hundreds of others, including many women, joined them. The police finally gave up attempts to stop them.

One gate which was opened for women and 2,500 members of the Boys' Brigade was rushed by the crowd and hundreds forced their way through without paying admission.

Victoria Holds 2-0 Lead

Red Devils Beaten 66-46 In Second of West Playoffs

VANCOUVER, April 19—(CP)—Victoria R.C.A.F. defeated Edmonton R.C.A.F. Devils 66-46 here Saturday night and took a two-game lead in their best of five series for the western Canada basketball championship. Victoria won the first game Friday night 47-40. The third game will be played Monday.

The Victorians coasted to an easy victory, outscoring their opponents in every quarter.

L. Cpl. Ian McKeachie with 16, Olie Goldsmith 15 and L. Cpl. Ralph Pay 12 led the Victoria attack. Goldsmith got 13 points in the first half while McKeachie sank all of his in the second half.

AC2. Jimmy Bardsley paced the Alberta team with 15. AC2 Johnny Kaminsky scored 13.

Victoria had full command of the game at all times. They played their own style, working the ball around until the scoring opportunity arose and then skillfully fed the man set up.

The arbiters called the plays very strictly and the rough and tumble tactics that characterized the opening game were missing Saturday.

Edmonton lost Fisher and Runa on personals, while Victoria lost R. Baker. Bardsley, Kaminsky, N. Baker and Lands each had three personals, but managed to escape the disqualifying foul.

The Victoria squad accounted for half their total score while their ace forward, Norm Baker, was on the bench. Goldsmith played a sensational game, and when he slowed down a bit, McKeachie took over. Ralph Pay played one of his best games, coming up with the ball time after time from scrambles under the basket and finding the hoop for a dozen points.

Victoria was weak on their shots from the foul line, sinking only six in 23 attempts. Edmonton also sank six, but had only 16 trys.

Kaminsky was quite a nice display of one-handed shooting, but on the whole the Red Devils were outclassed.

Lineups:

Victoria: N. Baker 9, Goldsmith 15, McKeachie 16, Pay 12, Stout 4, Phelan 4, Lands 2, McKim, Wright, R. Baker 4. Total—66.

Edmonton: Gill 8, Jenion, Watson, Main, Gray 2, Forrest, Fisher 2, Runa 4, Bardsley 15, Kaminsky 13. Total—46.

Officials: Joe Hall, Vancouver, and Ed Tomich of Edmonton.

Commandos Meet Victoria Army in Opener Tonight

WINNIPEG, April 18.—(CP)—Both Ottawa Commandos and Victoria Army were confident last night on the eve of the opening game of the Allan Cup senior hockey championship series here tonight.

Both clubs had workouts during the week-end, the Commandos displaying speed and passing before more than 200 rail-birds while Victoria added the finishing touches to plays behind closed doors.

Spr. Jake Brunning suffered a cut over his eye when heavily checked by Cpl. Kenny Reardon which required five stitches, but club officials said the injury would not keep him out of action.

Commandos held stiff workouts, both Saturday and yesterday. They will not skate today until game time.

"SOLD OUT"

Hundreds of Winnipeg fans, anxious to watch former city players, who provide much of the attacking power of both clubs, in action today were disappointed when the "sold out" sign was hung outside the Amphitheatre rink four days before the series begins. More than 5,000 other fans will fill the rink to the rafters.

Coach Alex Smith of Ottawa, while predicting a tougher struggle than the eastern final last week, said his club is "quite confident and has a good chance." In the next breath, he added, "We haven't seen the Victoria Army play . . . they must be good to have put out Winnipeg."

The Army sextet from the west coast eliminated Winnipeg R.C.A.F. Bombers in the western final a week ago.

DIFFERENT STYLES

The two teams probably will play a different style of hockey. The Commandos methods usually follow the five-man power attack while Victoria leans to a passing form of offensive.

Smith announced that Cpl. Ken Kilrea, former Toronto Marlepolis Capitals in the Amerrican legue, and Pte. Eddie Slowinski, Winnipeg junior, will be back in the lineup tonight. Kilrea suffered a knee injury and Slowinski a shoulder sprain in an earlier play-off.

Commandos starting line will be Pte. Sugar Jim Henry in goal; Cpl. Kenny Reardon and Cpl. Bingo Kampman on defence, with the former New York Rangers are line —Neil and Mac Colville and Alex Shibicks—up front. The subs will be Lt. Gordon Poirie, Kilrea, Slowinski and Spr. Joe Cooper.

Lt. Bud Ray, coach of the Victoria team, declared his team in good shape and "ready" for the series. He did not disclose his starting lineup.

The banjo was invented a little more than a hundred years ago and is strictly an American instrument.

Count Fleet Easily Wins Jamaica's Wood Memorial

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK, April 19—(AP)—In spite of a gashed hind foot, Count Fleet mopped up just about all the Kentucky Derby's eastern delegation Saturday by taking the Wood Memorial at Jamaica.

He came home four lengths in front of seven other Derby eligibles, after suffering the cut in his right foot in a scramble at the starting gate.

Although the wound bled considerably, it was not regarded as serious. So lad might the tall son of Reigh Count pointed to the $75,000 bank roll waiting at Churchill Downs May 1.

Mrs. John D. Hertz's entry won $30,150 Saturday and Jockey Allen Simmons' Blue Swords four lengths behind, with Jockey Johnny Longden of Taber, Alta., easing him up from the eighth pole to the wire.

Although he had no competition, he hit the wire in 1:45 for the 1 1-16th mile, just two fifths of a second off the track record. He ran, in fact, just as a 1-to-4 shot should run, and that's what the big crowd of 24,074 made him—$2.50 for $2—as they poured $196,192 into the mutuel machine on him, bushing all records for the "support" ever given one horse in New York. Previously, the high had been $149,000 "invested" on Whirlaway in the Surburban Handicap at Belmont last May.

Only two of the trainers said after the race that they were even sure they would go to the Derby. These were Don Cameron, who keeps the eagle eye on the Count, and Walter Kelley, Blue Swords conditioner.

W. M. Boeing's Twoses came from far back to finish third, six lengths behind Blue Swords.

Slide Rule, regarded as the No. 1 horse in Boeing's barns since Devil's Thumb was injured, finished fifth, a length behind Trash. Ben Whitaker's Pop's Pick, Bringing up the rear were Modest Lad, Mrs. Payne Whitney's four Yankee Doms and Vincentive, in that order.

With his victory, the Count boosted his earnings to $96,345.

Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons, six times winner of the Wood, scratched both his entries—Tippy Toe and Bossuet—and announced he will ship neither to the Derby.

NEW YORK, April 19.—As baseball's most bizarre training campaign concludes this week-end, we wonder if the New York Yankees actually are as bad as they seem.

Last you forget—the Yankees are the defending champions in the American League, although they were belted out by the Cardinals in the last world series.

Moving into this year's campaign, there no longer is a question of finding opposition for the Yanks. It's a question of finding a Yankee team that can produce.

Unquestionably the Yanks were behind the other clubs in training, despite anything Manager Joe McCarthy might say in defense of Asbury Park, N.J., where it always was foggy and too misty for infield practice.

EXHIBITIONS COMPLETED

THE Yanks now have completed their exhibition schedule, losing six encounters against four victories. Their only victories were two over Newark, the farm club one over Brooklyn and one over Ft. Hancock. The Yanks lost four games to Brooklyn, one to Boston Braves, and another to Newark.

This is most unusual, because in the past the Yanks took immediate command of the training season. But in this war time campaign they have yet to establish their superiority. It is the first time in Joe McCarthy's managerial reign that the Yanks finished under .500 in spring training exhibition games.

One of the main concerns of the Yanks is that the pitchers haven't had sufficient work. The flingers haven't had the opportunity of proving their worth. Only Spud Chandler, Atley Donald and rookie southpaw Tom Byrne, have appeared as often as three times.

NEED CROSETTI

CHANDLER leads in competitive exercise with 13 innings, but he has given up 18 hits and 17 runs.

Frankie Crosetti, the veteran Yankee infielder, is holding out because of a penalty against him—$250 fine and a month on sidelines. Crosetti declines to make terms because of the fine and the period of inaction, he expects to get paid for his month of inaction. Claiming that his run-in with the umpire during the last world series was quite in line of duty.

We predict now that the Yanks will offer every enticement to Crosetti, and that this great leadoff man will be the spark plug of the Yanks' attack by May 21.

CANADIAN SPORTSHOTS

By CHARLES EDWARDS

TORONTO, April 19.—(CP)—Neil Colville tells what makes Ottawa Commandos' great Colville-Shibicky forward line tick. The way he told it to Bill (Ottawa Journal) Westwick, it's just a question of three hockey players sticking together over a period of years, working out their own plays, learning each other's ways. Neil, his brother Mac, and Alex Shibicky started together with Brooklyn Crescents in the Eastern U.S. Amateur League in 1934. They turned professional in 1935 with Philadelphia Ramblers and moved into the big time with New York Rangers the following season. They've been together ever since.

"We started out as three pink kids and once we got together we decided there was a job for each of us," says Neil. "I don't think any of us would have gone far without the others. The boys shout to each other on the ice. "Then we got to varying shouts to that every expression meant something."

Acting President Red Dutton of the National Hockey League is heading back home to Calgary to clean up some personal business. He sees no reason why the league should not operate next season "so long as we operate within the law and don't interfere with the war effort." He explains: "We could fill our ranks with Juniors and there are hundreds of good ones available."

Paddock Patter:

Thoroughbreds are arriving at Vancouver to train for the British Columbia opening at Hastings Park July 3. Vancouver's other two tracks will not operate because of transportation difficulties.

Incidentally:

It is reported that New York Rangers considered Mike Karakas, former Chicago Black Hawks player, as solution to their goal-keeping worries this year but the Providence club wanted $15,000 for him. Lester Patrick figured that was too much for a 34-year-old goalie. . . . Hamilton junior hockey club has obtained an 18-year-old Port Arthur star, Harold Brayshaw, for next winter. They're also angling for two other lakehead boys, Albert Shewchuk and Jack Marshall.

Ocean Wave Takes Keeneland Purse

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 19.—(AP)—Warren Wright's Ocean Wave and Mrs. E. V. Mars' No Winkles looked like definite Kentucky Derby starters as they finished one-two in Keeneland's Elmendorf Purse Handicap at Churchill Downs Saturday.

In the $1,200 race Ocean Wave led No Winkles to the wire in a photo finish by a scant head. Two and a half lengths back came Valdina farms' Valdina Sol, which in turn outdistanced all horses by eight lengths for the show position.

Army, Navy Pats Practice Tuesday

The Army and Navy Pats girls' fastball club will practice Tuesday night at the McDougall school grounds, at 7:30 o'clock, and again Thursday at the Kingsway Park at the same time.

Becomes Sixth Repeater

By BILL KING

BOSTON, April 19—(AP)—Little Gerard Cote, a Canadian infantry sergeant stationed at Valleyfield, Que., became the sixth repeater in the 47-year history of the famed Boston A. A. marathon yesterday when he finished a minute, 38 1-5 seconds ahead of Pte. Johnny Kelley of the United States Army, 1935 winner. They had raced side by side over all but the last five miles of the Hilly 26-mile, 385-yard stretch.

Cote, native of Ste. Hyacinthe, Que., who gained his first B.A.A. victory in 1940 and finished eighth or better in all the other races back to 1937, was timed in 2:28:25 4-5, only a minute and 34 3-5 seconds slower than the world's fastest marathon time turned in by last year's winner, Joe Smith of Medford, now serving in the United States coast guard.

Most of the other favorites in the small starting field of 89, which included four other former winners, were among the earliest to reach the finish line. Fred McGlone of Boston, the current national marathon titlist, was a close third in 2:30:41. Lloyd Bairston of Boston, now in the United States navy, was fourth in 2:33:47 and Leslie Pawson of Pawtucket, R.I., thrice a B.A.A. victor, was fifth in 2:35:58.

Baltimore's husky Don Heinicke, who finished fourth, third and second in the last three Boston "grinds," wound in in sixth place and the others in the first 10, in order, were Bill Wiklund of Clifton, N.J., Tony Medeiros and Lou Young, both of Medford, and Mike O'Hara of New York and the United States navy.

The 55-year-old Clarence DeMar of Boston, the winner of seven of the 25 starts he has made in this endurance race, was 17th in 2:57:58 and Ellison (Tarzan) Brown, the Westerly, R.I., Indian who led the pack home in 1936 and 1939, was the 21st to cross the finish line.

All of them, including Cote, who was handicapped by a week-old ankle injury, ran in about their finishing order all the way.

Canadiens Beat Victoria Navy 3-2

LOS ANGELES, April 19.—(CP)—Montreal Canadiens scored a hard fought 3-2 victory over Victoria Navy here Saturday night before a crowd of 8,500 persons. The win gave Montreal a three to one lead in the series of exhibition hokey matches.

Montreal broke a two-all deadlock after 11 minutes and seven seconds of the last period and held the advantage despite a driving attack by Victoria, paced by the Bentley brothers, Doug, Max and Reg.

Victoria scorers were: Tomson and R. Bentley.

Both goaltenders had a busy night, Biebeault of Montreal, making 37 saves and Rayner of Victoria, 32.

Major Leagues Well Supplied With Southpaws

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK, April 19.—(AP)—Everyone agrees that this probably will be the whackiest of all baseball seasons—and maybe that's the reason virtually all the major league pitching staffs have more than the customary supply of left-handers.

Washington doesn't have an established portsider and a good left-handed flipper would be as welcome as chocolate cake to Manager Jim Wilson, of the Chicago Cubs.

But otherwise, the teams haven't been rationed when it comes to southpaw soup-bones.

The Browns have Al Hollingsworth, a 10-6 winner a year ago; Fritz Ostermueller; Archie McKain and Bill Kennedy, a "nothing ball" bowler who won 24 for New Orleans last year.

The Red Sox, Indians, Tigers and White Sox all list three each with Stub Overmire, a rookie, being counted on heavily for the Tigers and Al Olsen, an 18-game winner at San Diego last season, the pride of Boston. The White Sox trio is made up of hard luck Ed Smith, Thornton Lee, hoping for a comeback, and Jake Wade.

Joe McCarthy, manager of the New York Yankees, has only rookie Tommy Byrne and Marius Russo, troubled with a sore arm, as his unorthodox flingers and Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics can trot out Hermen Besse and rookie Talmadge Abernathy.

The National League apparently holds a corner on the name southpaws with the transfer of Vernon Gomez from the Yankees to the Boston Braves.

The Californian Castilian now will be keeping company with such heroes as Carl Hubbell of the New York Giants, and Johnny Vander Meer, Cincinnati's double no-hit ace.

St. Louis will bank on Howie Pollett and Ernie White when a lefthander is needed; Wally Hebert, a 35-year-old former major leaguer is trying for a berth with the Pittsburgh Pirates; Brooklyn's Max Macon is as potent at bat as he is on the mound and the Philadelphia Phils' meager staff lists Al Gerheauser, two short years ago labelled as one of the best southpaws in the Yank farm system.

Currie Army Wins 7-4 From Buffs

CALGARY, April 19.—(CP)—Two clubs that sparkled with National Hockey League stars—some past and some present—provided over 2,000 enthusiasts with an interesting display at the arena Saturday night when Currie Army, Alberta Service Senior League champions, scored the jump against Buffaloes, intermediate champions of western Canada by taking a 7-4 decision in the first game of the best of three city title playoff. Second game is scheduled at the arena tonight with the third, if necessary, on Wednesday night.

Lorne Carr of the N.H.L. 1943 all-stars, and Kenny Stewart, with two goals each set the pace for Army. Don Deacon, Tony Desmarais and Harold Scott also tallied for the soldiers. Forsey, Hergert, Schriner and Cairns were the marksmen for Buffaloes.

Fastball Workouts At Kingsway Park

There will be two senior men's fastball practices at the Kingsway Park tonight. No. 5 "M" Depot is scheduled to work out from seven o'clock to eight and South Side Athletics will practice from eight to nine.

On Tuesday night at the same place the Aircraft Repair senior men's and girls' teams have the diamond from 7 to 9.

Winnipeg Juniors Appear Confident Series Outcome

TORONTO, April 19.—(CP)—Studied caution almost—but not quite— gave way to the natural elation of victory as Winnipeg Rangers' board of strategy talked over Saturday night's 6-5 triumph over Oshawa Generals in the first game of the Memorial cup final. Coach Bob Kinnear and Manager Scotty Oliver of Rangers, as was the case before the game, still refused to make any open predictions of Winnipeg success in the final.

Kinnear, declared that Rangers still have a "hard fight" on their hands. And Oliver chipped in: "The fans saw a real hockey game out there and were glad. We just came down here to do our best. We haven't got any big ideas. That's about all there is to say."

Goalie Doug Jackson, although excited about the victory, was annoyed at what he considered a bad decision on the part of the referees in awarding Bonnie Nelson of the Generals the first goal in the last period. The 12,239 fans apparently agreed with Jackson, because their roar of disapproval drowned out the announcement of Nelson's name as the goal-scorer over the loudspeaker system.

"I'll be a son-of-a-gun if that was a goal," said Jackson. "I stopped the shot and the puck bounced out in front of me. Nelson was sliding along the ice. And Nelson, the puck and I were all carried into the net."

Over in the Oshawa dressing room the Generals sat around dejectedly after the contest. Red Tilson, their ace centre-man who was held pointless in the game perched atop the rubbing table staring disconsolately at the floor.

Coach Charlie Conacher declared that the loss "might be the best thing that could have happened to them." Conacher admitted that the Generals, pre-game favorites, possibly were suffering from over-confidence. "They probably thought all they had to do was go through the motions, particularly after they moved into a 2-0 lead in the first period," the former star added.

Winnipeg Blind Bowlers Capture Rowland Trophy

VANCOUVER, April 19.—(CP)—Winnipeg broke off Vancouver's monopoly of first place in Western Canada's annual blind bowling tourney by capturing the Rowland Cup in a telegraphic competition among five western cities Saturday. Vancouver had won the cup in all the five previous times the cup had been at stake.

The scores were:

Winnipeg	722	784	952—2458
Vancouver	769	731	796—2296
Edmonton	645	690	738—2073
Victoria	673	734	649—2047
Calgary	695	650	609—1954

EDMONTON TEAM FINISHES THIRD

Edmonton's blind bowling team of three women and two men scored a three-game total of 2,073 in the annual western Canada Telegraphic five-pin bowling tournament, to give them third place in competition with similar blind teams at Winnipeg, Calgary, Vancouver and Victoria, officials of the tourney announced last night.

The blind bowlers, guided by special hand-rails set up in the alleys, took part in the annual tournament Saturday. They scored 645, 690 and 738 in the three-game competition.

Edmonton's team consisted of Mrs. J. M. Christoffersen, Alice Fitzgerald, Garnet Benson, Hugh Lacey and Walter Sorensen with Allan DeCoursey as substitute.

AIRCREW COSTS MONEY

WASHINGTON.—(CP)—It is estimated that training of aircrew in the United States Army and Navy costs $25,000 per man.

"ON TIME?"

MAYBE NOT, but there's a reason . . . and a reason also why your train may be crowded, may lack the kind of accommodation you have learned to expect. We'd like to tell you what these reasons are. Today, war demands that freight trains be given right of way over everything . . . with the single exception of troop trains.

These freight trains must run on time, even though passenger trains are delayed and passenger service is curtailed.

To handle freight and passenger traffic, we have just so many locomotives . . . so much rolling stock . . . so many miles of track . . . so many crews. And in the winter just past, our difficulties were added to by unusually severe weather conditions.

We want you to know these facts so that you will understand the problem. We have a tremendous job to do, the biggest part of which is moving the tools of war. With the co-operation of shippers we are able to do that job. Your sympathetic understanding of the task will help us to do it even better.

Allies Retake Vital Heights Lost to Nazis

By WILLIAM B. KING

WITH THE BRITISH 1ST ARMY IN CHACUACH VILLAGE, April 17—(Delayed)—(AP) —Allied infantry, supported by massed artillery, today recaptured all the heights temporarily lost to German counter-attacks on the Northern Tunisian front.

The new thrusts again gave the Allies possession of a string of peaks cutting across the mountain mass paralleling the Medjez-El-Bab-Tebourba road.

A night and day's fighting re-established the British forces atop the hills named Bou Dis and Tanngoucha.

The Allies are within 29 miles —on a direct line—of Tunis in this sector and the Nazis contested each foot of territory.

The German command has fortified heavily the perimeter on which the line has become fixed and there is every indication that the Allied effort from here on will be a matter of eating away these points of resistance. Fortified hills must be blasted by bombs and artillery and then occupied by the infantrymen.

Aluminum Plant Dispute Settled

CHICOUTIMI, Que., April 19.—(CP)—The huge Aluminum Company of Canada plant at nearby Arvida was freed of a strike threat last night following an agreement reached Saturday by three parties to a dispute over union recognition.

Raoul Trepanier of Montreal, federal conciliator in the dispute, announced the agreement between the International Union of Aluminum Workers (A.F.L.) the National Syndicate of Aluminum Workers, and the company had been settled by an agreement satisfactory to all parties.

The agreement came when the syndicate agreed to the third of three proposals made by Mr. Trepanier—that a referendum be held in November to determine which of the two unions should represent the workers when the present agreement between the syndicate and the company expires at the end of the year.

False Reports Of Casualties Made in Halifax

HALIFAX, April 19.—(CP)—Relatives in Halifax of some Canadian army men have been boasting, while believing the men have been killed in action, headquarters of Military District No. 6 disclosed last night. Women with husbands or sons on active service have been victims of the hoax. They have been telephoned by a person purporting to represent cable or telephone companies, who tells them the relative has been reported killed.

"Investigation in every instance has shown the message to be false," the army added.

Authorities could ascribe no motive for the trick, aside from the belief that it was perpetrated for "sadistic pleasure."

Farm For Victory Groups to Survey Needs in South

CALGARY, April 19.—(CP)—"Farm for Victory" zone committees will be organized at Pincher Creek, Deer and Olds this week to survey the needs of the farming communities in each district as part of a concerted action to organize all available manpower and equipment to the best advantage, said E. W. Brunsden, secretary of the Alberta Federation of Agriculture, yesterday.

The Calgary zone committee was established last week. Zone committees had previously been established at Lethbridge, Pincher Creek and Cardston.

Recapture Three Escaped Convicts

REIDSVILLE, Ga., April 19.—(AP) — Three hungry, swamp-soaked convicts, part of a band of 25 which broke from the state penitentiary here Friday, were captured near here yesterday. Still at large are Forrest Turner and Leland Harvey, notorious Georgia jail-breakers, and 17 others.

Extensive Planning

By FRANK FLAHERTY

OTTAWA, April 19.—(CP)—Behind the government's decision to finance the designing of distinctive Canadian types of transport aircraft lies a conviction on the part of key authorities that aircraft manufacturing has a peacetime as well as a wartime role in Canadian economy.

Although it is almost two weeks since the government's declaration of policy on post-war air transport was made, it is still a topic of discussion in governmental and parliamentary circles, to some extent because of attention being centred on the subject in the United States.

No other single field of post-war international relations appears to be getting the same attention as air transport and in no other field are such active preparations being made to meet possible future situations.

PRODUCE MANY TYPES

The Canadian aircraft industry, starting from scratch at the start of the war, now is producing in quantity several types of warplanes, not only for Canadian use but for export.

It is expected the firms producing these types will be given the task of designing transport types with government assistance, so each producer when the time comes might be in a position to switch operations from military types to transport planes in a similar range of size and power.

The government's policy statement said it was hoped a part of the future Canadian requirements for aircraft could be supplied from Canadian sources. Some aircraft production authorities have said they regard that as a decidedly modest statement of the objective.

On the basis of war production they contend, aircraft can be manufactured here for sale abroad in competition with the output of older-established industries in other countries.

That approach makes the development of Canadian designs decidedly important, since it might not be possible to obtain licenses to manufacture aircraft designed abroad, except for the Canadian market.

NO DEFINITE STAND

The Canadian policy statement did not commit Canada to a definite stand on the "freedom of the air" debate. It plumped for "international collaboration and cooperation."

Freedom of the air as it is understood in some quarters means the right of aircraft of any nation to fly over and land on the territories of other nations, subject only to the observance of local traffic regulations.

The closed air policy, which prevailed in most countries before the war, mean the denial of the air above each nation. It resulted in bargaining among nations for mutual flying and landing rights.

Canada, with a heavy government investment in airports, emergency landing fields, weather reporting and radio services, and an expanse of territory which makes the use of these facilities a necessity to aircraft crossing the country, may not be willing to put them at the disposal of all comers.

CONDITIONS UNCERTAIN

Despite the study which is being given to it, authorities consider it almost impossible to predict under what conditions international collaboration and co-operation in civil air transport may be possible.

The big unknown factor is the post-war military air position. Civil transport development is so closely allied to military air strength that whatever international control is applied to armaments is expected to be reflected in the approach to civil transport.

As a military air power Canada stands high—fourth among the United Nations, after the United States, Great Britain and Russia, that means fourth in the world, assuming the Axis powers are defeated and disarmed.

All signs point to the evolution of a plan to attain an importance for this country in civil transport comparable to that attained in the military sphere.

Berlin Asserts Western Europe "Invasion-Proof"

OTTAWA, April 19.—(CP)—The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation said last night its listening post had picked up a broadcast from Berlin describing the western coast of Europe as "invasion-proof."

The Berlin broadcast said "invasion-proof fortifications" had been established all the way from the tip of Norway to the Bay of Biscay, some 1,700 miles. Berlin added that the fortifications "not only are safe from frontal attacks but also from the back," the C.B.C. said.

Ottawa Plans Employment for All When Conflict Ends

Parliamentary Committee Chairman Announces Plans Now Are Being Formulated

There will be the opportunity for full employment for all with the will to work in the post-war period, according to J. Gray Turgeon, M.P. for the Carriboo constituency of British Columbia, and chairman of the parliamentary committee on post-war reconstruction and re-establishment who visited Edmonton on Saturday on his way to Vancouver for the Easter holidays.

Mr. Turgeon said that this policy had been adopted by the committee at its last session, and plans are now being formulated to devise ways and means of providing the work projects to see that all are gainfully employed in the post-war period.

He said the committee is studying the proper utilization and development of the nation's natural resources. This study should result in the adoption of work plans that would permit the absorption of men and women from the armed services, the merchant navy and from war industry.

Mr. Turgeon said that the keenest interest was being taken by the reconstruction and re-establishment committee in the post-war welfare of the men of the merchant navy. He said there appeared to be abroad the idea that little was being done for the welfare of these men and stated that they would receive equal treatment with the men of the armed services of the nation.

He stated that the committee was making a study of the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act with a view to having its scope extended to all of Canada, and also extended to deal with the rehabilitation of all types of land. At present it is restricted to land on which soil drifting occurs.

He expressed the personal opinion that the linking of the Alaska Highway with the highway system of British Columbia was a military necessity.

He said that surveys of the road from Prince George to Fort St. John had been made by both Canadian and United States engineers. The construction of this road would provide a link with the highway system of British Columbia, he added, and stressed the fact that at present the only direct communication with the Alaska highway from British Columbia was by air.

He predicted that in the post-war period a great amount of capital would flow to Canada from the United States for the development of the natural resources that abounded in the territory adjacent to the Alaska highway.

More Supplies Thought Coming To This City

Assurances that serious consideration is being given to requests for increased quotas of supplies in Edmonton, have been received from supplies administrators at Ottawa and Toronto by the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, it was learned Monday.

Wholesale and retail sections of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce had some time ago submitted written requests to the administrators for increased quotas of all kinds for Edmonton. The chamber committees pointed out the city's population had increased by several thousand during the past few months.

In addition, thousands of other people, engaged in northern war projects, are receiving supplies from Edmonton firms.

The Edmonton commerce body contends that these conditions entitled firms in this city to greater increased quotas over those allotted here prior to the northern development work.

Children Astray

Three children, the youngest of whom was five years old, noticed in a cafe about 9:45 p.m. Saturday, told authorities that their parents were visiting at the home of an aunt. A call at the latter place showed that the parents had not been there that day, while a trip to the youngsters' home found the parents away. The youthful trio was taken to the Child Welfare for the night. It was not until Sunday that the parents visited the police station to inquire about their children.

A meeting of the executive of the Boys League of Canada will be held in the offices of the president, G. H. Sleer, K.C., Royal Bank Chambers, at 5 p.m. Monday afternoon.

Many Citizens Enjoy Warmest Day of Season

Summer weather visited Edmonton over the week-end, and a brilliant sun brought thousands of residents out to golf courses, picnic grounds and hiking trails.

With a high temperature reading on Sunday of 71, the thermometer reached the highest point so far this year. Even by late evening the weather was still warm and mild and crowds promenaded up and down Jasper reluctant to turn in for the night. Lowest temperature during the last 24 hours was 42. Monday morning promised another warm, sunny day, and the latest temperature reading showed a point of 56 above.

From early morning until late at night Sunday, golf courses and other recreation centres did "a land office business" Hundreds basked all day in the hot sun on the slopes of McDougall hill.

Gasoline restrictions were in evidence in the relatively few cars that were on the highways and, where, in former years, roads would have had an almost endless stream of traffic there was only the occasional car to be seen.

Riding academies were busy throughout the day and many people not wishing to use up their gas ration turned to the reliable horses for a canter up the river.

GOLFERS IN ACTION

Golf courses, largely under water a couple of weeks ago, are now quite dry and in good shape.

Greatest evidence in the trend away from car riding was the number of cyclists out for the day. In pairs or in parties as large as 25 they were to be seen along every highway adjacent to the city.

Picnic baskets were taken out of storage and along the river banks hundreds of picknickers were enjoying the summer weather.

THE QUESTION

Do you think Spain will get anywhere with its Axis-inspired peace offensive?

THE ANSWERS

LAC. G. GREEN, R.C.A.F.: I don't think a single Canadian will pay any attention to the Spanish peace drive. It is actually a pretty fair indication of the plight of the Axis that Spain should try to cultivate the impression that neither side can win the war.

E. AGAR, sign writer: The Spanish peace offensive is the best news yet. It can only mean that Hitler and Mussolini are starting to squirm as the heat is turned on. I don't think many people in Allied countries will fall for that stuff.

I. McMILLAN, welder: The Axis are in bad shape when Friend Franco starts hollering quits on behalf of Hitler and the other Axis thugs. I don't think the peace drive will get far at this time. It certainly should not receive any support in Allied countries.

Beer Situation Remains Static

There are no new developments in the beer situation as it affects the province, J. A. King, chairman of the Alberta Liquor Control Board, said Monday.

Mr. King, who has been out of town on business last week, was reported by Calgary newspapers to be in that city looking into the situation, and seeing if there was more beer to be had from the breweries. Since there is no new development, it would appear that Edmontonians will go beerless until May. This was the situation confronting them, early last week, when stocks ran out. It was thought in some quarters the chairman of the board might have been successful in obtaining more beer under the April quota, or possibly by "borrowing" against a future quota.

Selective Service Employees Enlist

Three former employees of the Edmonton national selective service offices were enlisted Monday in the R.C.A.F. (W.D.). They are Shirley Wells, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Wells, 10942 85 avenue, Edmonton; Beth Caston, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Caston, Macklin, Sask., and Mary Finlay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Finlay, Lloydminster, Alberta.

The twin brother of Beth Caston, Pilot Officer Thomas Caston, R.C.A.F., was killed overseas in March, 1942. Two other brothers are now with the R.C.A.F. in Canada. They are LAC. Robert Caston, at Dartmouth, Nova Scotia, and Cpl. Douglas Caston, stationed in Calgary.

The three girls will be leaving together for No. 7 Manning Depot, Rockcliffe, Ont., on April 27.

Mrs. Owen was a native of St. Louis, Mo., from which city she came here in 1905.

She survive her, Mrs. Owen leaves two daughters, Mrs. James Smith of Calgary and Mrs. W. Plowman of Edmonton, and one son Walter with the R.C.A.F. at Ottawa. Two grandchildren, Lorraine and Owen Plowman also survive.

Young Appearing Officer Appointed to Take Charge U.S. Air Force Wing Here

By JACK DeLONG

He's so youthful in appearance that a person scarcely can believe he holds the rank of lieutenant-colonel in the United States Army Air Force, but the silver star on his shoulder is the visible proof.

We have reference to the acting officer in command of the Alaskan wing of the U.S.A.A.F. Transport Command, Lt.-Col. Frank N. Nightingale of Augusta, Kansas, whose headquarters are at the U.S. section in the Edmonton airport area.

Lt.-Col. Nightingale is only 33 years old, but he's a real veteran at that. He has served for 10 years in the air force and is a service pilot, competent to fly just about any aircraft now roaming the skies.

For the last five months he has been assistant chief of staff for the Alaskan Wing, and chief executive officer to Col. Thomas L. Modley, commanding officer of the wing, who has been transferred to duties elsewhere.

Lt.-Col. Nightingale has seen service in many parts of the world, including three years past at Luke Field, in the Pearl Harbor area at Honolulu, Hawaii.

IN CARIBBEAN AREA

Before coming to Edmonton he was officer in charge of the Caribbean wing of the U.S.A.F. Transport Command, with headquarters at Palm Beach, Florida.

Although temperatures were admittedly considerably lower at Edmonton during the past few months than at Palm Beach, Lt.-Col. Nightingale says he enjoyed the recent Canadian winter.

Lt.-Col. Nightingale's chief assistant is Maj. P. E. Greiner, of Butte, Mont., who is assistant head of operations and in charge of routes and briefing. He has been in the army eight years and with the air force about four years.

City Soldiers Send Greetings From Overseas

Men of the Edmonton Regiment in Britain are in the well-known pink of condition and their morale is at the highest possible level. This is the message brought back to Edmonton by Lt.-Col. E. H. Strickland, officer commanding Army Basic Training Centre No. 133 at Wetaskiwin, who returned to the city Sunday after three months spent in Britain observing advanced training methods.

"The boys of the Edmonton Regiment are putting on a great show in their training and are very anxious to come to grips with the enemy," said Lt.-Col. Strickland.

"Of course they would all like to see Edmonton again," he added.

"But the idea in every mind is to see the 'jig' job through first," he added.

Lt.-Col. Strickland spent some days visiting with the Edmonton Regiment. All officers of the regiment wanted to be remembered to their friends back home. Among those who asked him to say "hello" to their friends here, were Maj. William Bury, one of the regiment's original officers and Capt. Donald C. Simms, reinforcement officer.

IN GOOD HEALTH

The original officer commanding the 1st Bn. of the Edmonton Regiment, who took the unit overseas in the fall of 1939 is Lt.-Col. W. G. Stillman also was visited. He is in good health.

Lt.-Col. Stillman describes the spirit of the British people as wonderful. They feel that the Allied fortunes are definitely on the mend now. The hit-and-run raids carried out by German sneak raiders are "annoying" but of no military value to the Nazis, Lt.-Col. Strickland said.

The Edmonton officer was in one of these hit-and-run raids on the south coast one Sunday afternoon.

"The planes came, dropped their bombs, on a small town and then ran for home. They smashed quite a few buildings," he said.

The officer plans to go to Wetaskiwin to take over active command of the centre within the next few days.

Alberta Farmers Expect Soon Commence Threshing 2,000,000 Acres of Crop

Nearly 2,000,000 acres of crop remain to be threshed this spring, and the threshing is expected to become general next week if the weather holds good, officials of the department of agriculture stated Monday.

Farmers were never so short of help as they are now," the officials said, "and recent developments in the labor field are anything but encouraging, as far as farmers are concerned."

Farmers are offering from $4 to $6 per day, plus board, to threshing crews, it was pointed out.

A special appeal to all those wishing to give a helping hand besides making some good money," it was said.

"Small farmers and settlers in pioneering districts who can get away for spring threshing are urged to report at once to their district agricultural, farm labor supervisors or local elevator agent, who has the necessary applications on hand, or to write to the department of agriculture at Edmonton.

Spring threshers may be paid one-way transportation, under the Dominion-Provincial labor agreement, it was stated.

The appeal for thresher-crews was concluded as follows: "Wherever you are, or whatever you do, forget everything for a time, and help the province in this emergency of harvesting last year's bountiful crop. Remember that food is the mainstay of life."

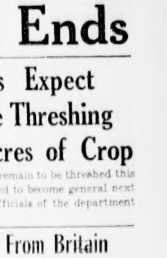
It is noted also that men are required for summer employment on farms, on a monthly basis.

U.S. Engineers' Offices Damaged

Fire did slight damage to a wall at the back of a store in the premises of the U.S. Engineers, 115 avenue and 101 street, at 1:18 a.m. Sunday. No. 5 fire hall responded, but the flames were extinguished by one of the kitchen staff with the aid of a hand pump. At 10825 25 street gate a run to firemen at 2:41 p.m. Sunday, while 14 grass fires was responded to over the week-end. One of the latter was a false alarm.

The Royal Canadian Sea Cadets will parade Tuesday and Friday, 19:30 hours, at the naval barracks.

From Britain



Lt.-Col. E. H. Strickland, officer commanding Canadian Army Basic Training Centre No. 133 at Wetaskiwin, who returned Sunday from Great Britain where he has spe t three months observing advanced training methods. He visited officers and men of the Edmonton Regiment and reports them "raring to go" against the enemy.

Around the Town

G. W. Hadrill, Montreal, manager Legal and General Assurance Co., arrived in Edmonton in the course of an inspection trip through western Canada. He is a guest at the Macdonald hotel.

F. F. Martin, Winnipeg, manager retail stores, Hudson's Bay Co., arrived in Edmonton Monday in connection with local store officials. He is accompanied by Col. L. F. Pearce, supervisor of buildings and the company's land department.

Decrees nisi of divorce were granted in supreme court Monday by Mr. Justice W. C. Ives to Frank Dovenec from Sarah E. Devenec; Violet B. O. Painter from William Painter; Anna Ropchan from William Ropchan, and Ruth R. Marsh from Wilfrid Marsh.

Minister of lands nad mines, the Hon. N. E. Tanner, has left the city for southern Alberta on departmental business. He will remain there until Thursday. He is not expected to visit the Drumheller mines, now closed due to the strike.

The door to his garage had not been locked and the key was in his pocket, Frank Sirisier, 9326 104 avenue, told police when notifying them of the theft of his car sometime between 10 p.m. Saturday and 10:25 a.m. Sunday. The car, a 1940 coach, is painted blue, and bears engine No. 2279.

Allocation of oil residue for maintenance of Edmonton's streets has been set at 16,000 gallons, G. R. Cottrelle, Dominion oil controller, announced Monday. The city will also receive 30,9000 gallons of asphalt. Calgary will get 45,600 gallons of asphalt and 46,000 gallons of oil. Both cities are receiving about one-third the peacetime allowance.

No announcement has been made yet regarding the Easter holiday period for employees of the provincial government. In the past, the civil servants have left work Thursday before Easter, and returned the Tuesday following. A cabinet decision is necessary to declare Saturday morning a holiday for the government employees, and this is expected by Wednesday.

Two youths were taken in charge by the city juvenile officer Sunday night, after one of them, a 15-year-old, who reportedly ran away from home two weeks ago, refused to return to that home with his elder brother. The boys were taken to the police station where they were given into the charge of the juvenile officer.

The St. John Ambulance Association is sponsoring a series of first aid lectures for men, the first of which will be held at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the King Edward hotel. Constable B. Peck of the R.C.M.P. will be the lecturer and practical triangular bandaging will be taught. Those interested may obtain further information by phoning R. Barson at 73969.

Two boys, 11 and 12 years old, respectively, were taken into custody at 12:15 a.m. Monday, after they had taken seven cents out of a weigh-scales which stood in the doorway of a departmental store on 101 street. The money had been obtained by tilting the scales back and forth and causing the coins to fall out at the base. Taken to the police station, the youths were interviewed by a juvenile officer, who also spoke to their parents. The latter stated that the lads frequently were in trouble, and they had been previously spoken to by authorities. The boys were impossible to handle, the parents added.

Getting Around with Jack DeLong

The Alaska Highway has been extended to Calgary! Yes, sir; it's a fact. But you would never know it from a thing about it had it not been for Reg. Rose, executive secretary of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce.

We were in the Edmonton chamber office the other day looking for a bit of news about business activities, when Mr. Rose handed us a letter.

"Read this," urged Mr. Rose, while something that looked mighty like a smirk distorted his usually beaming countenance.

At first glance the letter looked innocent enough. The letterhead was that of the Calgary Exhibition and Stampede Ltd., that conducts the annual Calgary Stampede.

It was a form letter, informing the reader that the annual stampede would be held as usual in 1943.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Heartaches Wasted By Worrying Mothers

Middle-Aged Woman, Tired, Is Unhappy When She Sees Grandiose Dreams Wrecked by Mary Happy in Flat

Mothers would save themselves many headaches and heartaches if they could realize that age and youth do not look at life from the same standpoints, and that their children are getting fun out of doing the things for which they pity them and weep over them. This is particularly true as regards their daughters whose mothers so often see them as mirrors, whereas the girls, themselves, are having a high old time doing the things they want to do and getting a whale of a kick out of doing them.

The average middle-aged woman is tired. She is disillusioned. Her supply of romance petered out long ago. Her husband turned out to be just an ordinary, human man instead of a Fairy Prince. She has had to work hard and pinch pennies bringing up a family, and her one obsession is to save her daughters from the hardships she has gone through. So for them she dreams grandiose dreams. They are to marry millionaires and live in palaces, and never have so much as a crumpled rosebud under their forty mattresses of ease.

WRECK DREAMS

But, alas, our children wreck the castles others plan than they make them come true. Young Croesus never rides down Mary's street. A poor young lad, with a way with him, comes whistling by and Mary gets up and follows him to the altar. And she goes to live in a two-by-four flat and do her own housework and buy clothes in a bargain basement and push her own perambulator, and Mother sheds many a tear over her, and always speaks of her as "poor Mary."

But Mary isn't a bit sorry for herself. She is not calling for the prayers and sympathy of the congregation. On the contrary, she is having the time of her life. She is young and strong and healthy and full of zip, and she is getting as much fun out of setting up her new home as she did out of playing house when she was a child.

She has entered into a new phase of existence and everything in it is an adventure. Learning to cook, mastering that inanimate demon, the gas range; bargaining with market people, working miracles with a budget, planning for the future, working shoulder-to-shoulder with her husband, and with everything spiced with youth and enthusiasm and glorified by love.

HUSBAND AND CHILDREN

It is a time of her life when a woman is nearest to her husband and when she gets the most pleasure out of her children because she serves them with her own hands, and the only shadow on it is that poor, dear Mother worries so over her having such a hard time, and is so sorry for her.

A now rich woman, once discussing this subject, said to me: "The first years of my marriage would have been perfectly happy if it hadn't been that my mother was so miserable about me. It simply broke her heart that I didn't have a car and a mink coat and cut a swath in society, and that I had to cook and patch my husband's trousers and darn the children's socks. And I could never make her understand that I was enjoying it all and wouldn't have changed places with a multi-millionairess. She is dead, but I hope she knows that now I am rich Mary instead of poor Mary, and that I am not having half as much fun."

Mothers take the same attitude towards their daughters who have jobs instead of living at home. If they happen to be cinema stars, or something that seems glamorous in mother's eyes, the mothers of business girls almost without exception pity them, and feel that they are terribly unfortunate because they are not married and are working in a store or office instead of in their own kitchens.

WORKING DAUGHTER

"Poor Sally," they wail, "she has to punch the time clock every morning in that horrid office store. Or: "It burns me up because my darling little Evelina has to meet all sorts of people in her work." Or: "I could weep when I think that my precious Clara can't even get off in the afternoons to go to cocktail parties."

But Sally and Evelina and Clara are not shedding any tears over themselves. They don't consider themselves victims of a cruel fate. They think they are darned lucky to hold down good paying jobs, and when they look at their pay envelopes and realize that they are economically independent and can earn their own board and keep, they get the kind of a thrill that makes life worth living.

To them going down to work of a morning isn't a hardship. It is starting out on a trip where anything may happen. They enjoy the everchanging human contacts. They like to feel that they are a cog in the big wheels that turn the world, and they are sorry for the stay-at-homes.

Pity that mothers waste so much sympathy on their children because they do not realize that each generation brews its own cocktails, and that all that youth needs to make it happy is just to be young.

Debunker

It is impossible for the muscles of the body to all relax at one time. Even in sleep some are contracted at least partially and some others remain strongly contracted during most of life. The muscles of the legs and arms maintain a balanced pull in both directions, and we call this tonus. When a bullet passes through the body wall, it does not leave a round hole, but a slit, showing that the muscles of the skin are partially contracted at the time.

Points For Parents

This

Not This

Mother: "Come here, Son. Here's a stool and two old chairs that you can climb on."

Mother: "As fast as I pull him off the back of this chair, he climbs up again. I can't make him behave."

Offering a substitute activity similar to a desired one is better than repeated forbidding which fails in its purpose.

Minute Make-Ups

Always have an eyecup in your beauty box. Wash the eyes with warm water, then cold. Eye lotion is soothing in these days of extra stress and strain. A little eye cream gives a finish for the eyelids; it gives them a dewy sheen. Brush the eyelashes to remove any trace of face powder.

McKenney On Bridge

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY

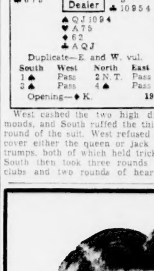
By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY
America's Card Authority

The rarest play in bridge is the smother play. There are but few cases on record of this play actually being made. However, as it is one that every bridge player should know, I am going to give you a series of six articles on it, of which this is the first.

When the dummy was exposed on the table, West regretted that he had not doubled the final contract. His trump trick looked "safe as a church," and the king and ace of diamonds both were trick winners. When East, his partner, won a heart trick, he felt he had been far too timorous. He still held the guarded king of trumps, with the ace a singleton on the table. But he reckoned without the smother play. Let's see how he lost that safe trick.



Duplicate—E and W. vul.

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 N.T.	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Opening—♦ K.			19

West cashed the two high diamonds, and South ruffed the third round of the suit. West refused to cover either the queen or jack of trumps, both of which held tricks. South then took three rounds of clubs and two rounds of hearts, and East was in one the third heart lead. West squirmed when his partner returned a diamond, which South ruffed. His "safe" trump trick no longer existed—it had been "smothered" by the declarer's accurate play.

My Day

By ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON.—I attended a party for the thrift shop here, an old charity in the District of Columbia, which supports some of the work done for underprivileged children. I was very much impressed by a short speech made by Captain Thomas L. Gatch, U.S.N., whose ship has a most distinguished record.

He is recovering from wounds received in action and paid a tribute to the bluejackets and youth fighting the war. It must make all of us proud to be American citizens and have our country defended by men such as he pictured.

Afterwards I went to see an exhibition of paintings by Jere Wickwire. The portraits are really excellent. There was a charming one of a little girl of three, and one of his mother that gave to age all the attributes we would like to have.

Mr. Wickwire has done a crucifixion and, instead of the conventional head of Christ, he has used the head of a young athlete. I thought at once that what he was trying to do was to show the crucifixion of this generation of youth all over the world.

Christ's crucifixion has come to be the symbol of the ultimate gift which love for one's fellow may exact from an individual, for Christ gave up his divinity in order that he might suffer and redeem the human race. Through the ages that has been the symbol of the greatest love of mankind.

In his paintings, Mr. Wickwire shows that the youth of today is again paying the ultimate price for the good of mankind. They are giving up their lives so that the rest of the world may have a chance again to redeem itself and build a better world.

In the evening we attended a mass memorial in Constitution Hall dedicated to the two million Jewish dead of Europe. It was called, "We shall never die." Flags of all the nations occupied by Germany came on the stage.

The music, singing, narration, and actors all served to make it one of the most impressive and moving pageants I have ever seen. No one who heard each group come forward and give the story of what had happened to it at the hands of a ruthless German military, will ever forget those haunting words: "Remember us."

All the way through, I thought how important it is in this country that we do not for a moment allow intolerance and cruelty to enter into our dealings with any of our own people, or with any people who have taken refuge among us. Even with our enemies, I hope we shall always remember that cruelty is a double-edged sword, destroying not only the victim, but the person who indulges in it.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

The doubling up of families brings into the open all those differences of opinion which exist between any two generations as well as between any two persons.

The child who is torn between the conflicting opinions of parent and parent or parent and grandparent is the real sufferer. His discipline is not consistent, it is emotionally inspired. Sometimes he gets away with "murder"; at other times he is punished for a trifle.

Mrs. P. H. admits that this being her first child she may make mistakes. "But, I think my parents-in-law expect too much of my 2-year-old child. I was one of a large family and I am used to taking care of children. I don't think he is spoiled. But these grandparents expect instant obedience, immediately and constantly.

"I find him to be a child to whom 'no' is a red flag. He is stubborn at times but ordinarily sweet-tempered and delights in helping me. My husband and I are peace-loving and anything which disrupts our happy home life is intolerable to us.

"Don't you think there are times when one must overlook naughtiness? Too many people telling him what to do makes him nervous, creates a scene, all of which is too much for a small child."

No child should be subjected to such struggles between opinions. Naturally you may not want to ignore a real misbehavior but the many things mischievous children do to tantalize us might better be ignored than dealt with. One can hardly make a blanket statement to cover all probabilities. Rather one should say that the adoption of such an impossible ideal as "instant obedience" could lead nowhere except to trouble.

For if one could bring about such an ideal it would be fatal to the child's development of personality. The more commands obeyed, the more there would be. Eventually everything the parent wanted done for her convenience or comfort, would become sacred and demand obedience.

The best way is to set the stage for a life that will make the fewest demands upon the child for obedience. He should play in a safe place with his own toys or own companions, when activity will be relatively unhampered. Routines to which the child has become so accustomed that they do not cause resentment will help. Then those necessary orders which must be given should be given with only a minimum of fuss and no punishment added to enforce them. Punishment, for children, is a call a child and he doesn't come, when you do go to bring him home there is no need to spank him because he didn't answer. Bringing him home is punishment enough.

During such periods as this, and this is especially the rule to follow, since resentment of your nose is a protection for the world's ideal as consciousness of himself as a person.

Our leaflet, "When the Child Says 'No'," may be had by sending a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

What To Do

Is it all right to ask a man in for a little while, even though it is late at night?

Answer—A woman does, many times, invite a man in when they have returned to her home from an evening elsewhere.

Smart girls these days do not keep late hours, and her decision to invite the man in may lie entirely with how much sleep she can get, or how tired she is.

If the man you have been out with is a service man on leave—you would probably stretch the point and invite him in though it is late perhaps for a sandwich or a drink—and most certainly for some more conversation before he goes back.

Remember that anything that interests and helps people is not a good thing to do, and be guided by local customs too.

Bulletin War Kitchen

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

Rationing puts our eating habits on a war basis. If we think of food and menus on this war basis, we can avoid panic and confusion. But if we try to go on making menus in the pre-war way, despite rationing, higher prices and scarcities, then we shall probably be badly nourished and become public demoralizers as well.

Train yourself to think of food in terms of nutrition, not in terms of specific foods such as ice cream, meat, vegetables, canned fruit, etc. The average adult needs about 85 grams of protein a day to maintain vigorous health. In normal times you could get those 85 grams of indispensable protein from about 12 ounces of lean meat. However, our fighters and our fighting allies need it to keep them up to their job of licking our enemies and protecting our homes.

USE PROTEIN GUIDE

Therefore, if we think of food on a war basis and in terms of nutrition, we can get our required daily amount of protein by using other protein foods. Here's a rough guide to a day's supply of about 100 grams of protein when lean meat is not available: a quart of milk, an ounce of American cheese, a serving of fish or shell fish, 4 slices bread, half of it wholewheat, ½ cup dried beans, soybeans, if possible, one egg, and a handful of peanuts.

The war kitchen housewife can prepare agreeable menus using these groups in foods, plus of course fruits and vegetables. When she accepts the inescapable fact that we are at war, not at peace, and plans her life on that basis, she will become a factor toward victory, the defender of her family's health, and a leader in her community.

You need advice, education and help, naturally. Read the newspapers regularly for market news, nutrition facts, and cooking lessons and menu guides. Attend an approved course in wartime nutrition, and keep always in mind "We are at war."

Tomorrow's Menu

Need of Concert Auditorium Emphasized by Musical Club

Hope was expressed at the annual meeting of the Women's Musical Club Saturday at the Masonic Temple by Mrs. Ernest Meaden, manager of the Celebrity Series of Concerts, that at the end of the war, all persons and organizations interested would join in efforts to obtain for this city a concert auditorium seating not less than 2,000 persons.

Her statement was made in a report to the meeting telling of the great demand for seats for the Celebrity Series and the inability of the club to accommodate all prospective patrons in view of the limited capacity of available auditoriums.

She expressed her "distress" that the city did not now have such an auditorium capable of accommodating 2,000.

In her report on the Celebrity Series, Mrs. Meaden said that this her ninth annual report, gave her a measure of satisfaction in that the series had grown from 363 subscribers [illegible] 1942-1943 season [illegible] on the waiting list and some applications for seats for the 1944-1945 season. Every seat for the season just closed had been disposed of prior to the end of June 1942 and the subscriptions for next season had been taken within a week after bookings opened. Every effort was being made to accommodate those desiring seats, and to suit them according to the re-arrangements in the seating due to transferring the series from the Empire theatre to McDougall United church auditorium.

BENEFITS OF SERIES

She pointed out that the club would receive more than $800 when the 1942-1943 accounts were completed. There remained only $6 outstanding of $12,900 handled in respect of the series. In the 1941-1942 season, collections had reached 100 per cent.

The series this season had contributed $1,913 to the Dominion treasury by way of amusement tax.

In her presidential report, Mrs. Gordon Gray stressed the difficulty of arranging programs due to prevailing conditions.

She said that the guest recitals had drawn a good response from the public, but the members themselves had not turned out in as great strength as she would have liked. "Members at large should take some of the responsibility for these programs and turn out to insure their success," she said.

DEPLORES INTEREST LACK

Mrs. Gray deplored the lack of membership in the club among the city's music teachers. "If the music teachers are not behind us, who can we expect to be interested?" she said. Teachers had responded when asked by the club to help in programs, but she felt that if they would join the club, even if they could not take an active part, they would assist by their moral support.

The membership in the club, for a city of this size and in comparison with some other clubs, made her "positively ashamed." She could see no reason why club membership should not be greatly increased and she appealed to members to interest others for next season.

Mrs. Gray also appealed for efforts on behalf of club finances, in that the club ought to be able to carry itself. She pointed out that in the year just closing there had been expenses of $691.20 while receipts had been $657.77.

She was delighted with the "amazing success" of the Celebrity Series. Some of the larger items of expenditure, including donations and scholarships were mentioned.

TRUST FUND

Miss K. H. Candy, reporting for the trust fund said that its assets now totalled $3,359.97. She reported that income during the past year had been $121.15 and that after expenditures, there was a balance on hand of $88.15 which was $1.85 more than at the same time last year.

Mrs Frank W. Mills giving her secretarial report stated that 10 regular executive meetings had been held with an average attendance at each of 10 members. In addition, two emergent meeting had been held.

Membership had increased from 180 last year to 211 this year, but the total still was far behind the number desired. She reoprted that the club's share of the Celebrity Series receipts for 1941-1942 was $653.51. During this season, nine recitals had been held, despite difficulties. She reviewed the various concerts.

FINANCIAL REPORT

The treasurer's report, given by Mrs. T. W. Dalkin, showed finances in a satisfactory state. Details of receipts and expenditures were given.

Five new members were elected to the club executive to serve for two years. They were Mrs. Harry S. Craig, Mrs. T. W. Dalkin, Mrs. F. W. Mills, Miss Helen Porter and Miss Hazel Taylor. Women Obliged To Be Citizens

MONTREAL, April 19.—(CP)—Judge Dorothy Kenyon of New York told the Canadian-American Women's Committee on International relations here that women have not only the right but the obligation to exercise their rights as citizens.

"Today the world needs the brains of women," she said. "It is our responsibility to utilize them to benefit society at large. The patterns of future progress are women's to make."

Mrs. G. E. A. Johnstone of the International Labor Office here outlined the gains made by women in the increased opportunities for work through the pressure of war, but said that there were signs of a return to "traditional prejudices" after the war.

"We must plan now for postwar employment of women," she said, "as part of the general employment policy the aim of which should be useful work for all regardless of sex."

Mrs. Rex Eaton, assistant director of National Selective Service, suggested that more emphasis should be placed on typical women's occupations such as nursing and domestic work, adding "we must rebuild these natural occupations of women so that they retain the respect of women as well as men."

In a quiet ceremony at Rupert Street Presbyterian manse at 8.30 p.m. Saturday, Elsie Barker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Barker of Vancouver was married to Roy Charleton Deacon, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Deacon, of Edmonton. The Rev. W. Simons officiated.

Given in marriage by her mother, the bride's dress was a two-piece, powder-blue wool model with which she wore a dusty rose straw hat trimmed with veiling, and at her shoulder, a corsage of roses.

Best man was Leo Janke of Edmonton.

Following the ceremony a reception to 25 guests was held in the Royal George hotel. To receive Mrs. Barker wore a two-piece dress of Copenhagen blue with black hat and corsage of carnations. The bridegroom's mother wore a two-piece black dress with gold trimmings, black accessories and a corsage of carnations.

Repair Plant Anniversary

Second anniversary of Aircraft Repair, Limited, was celebrated Saturday night at the plant's cafeteria with a "birthday party" under auspices of the A.R.L. Entertainment Association's regular "Saturday Nite Club." Novelties, dancing, contests and presentation of birthday honors highlighted the affair which was attended by over 600 employees and their friends.

W. Leigh Brintnell, president of the company, was on hand to give birthday gifts to five of the firm's outstanding workers. Those receiving recognition were Mrs. Thomas Bell, Miss Muriel Roach, Robert L. Smith, David Vipond and Kenneth Anderson.

Mrs. Bell is a prime example of an all-out family war effort. Her husband and three children are all in the active services. She does a valuable job in salvage stores at the plant. Miss Roach just recently passed the airforce welding test, making her probably the only woman in Canada qualified to weld on actual planes. Mr. Smith has won top awards so far in the current Aircraft Industry Employee Suggestion Plan. Vipond has the best work attendance record of any one at the plant during the two years' operation, never having missed a day. Anderson is the oldest continuous employee in the service of the company, having been with the old Mackenzie Air Service, Limited, for four years before the formation of the new A.R.L. organization.

PLANT DANCE BAND

Music was provided by the plant dance band, made up entirely of employees, and led by Peter Pullishy. Cafeteria arrangements were handled by J. Haig. President of the A.R.L. Entertainment Association is William Lamb. Other employees on the executive of the group are John Anderson, B. Bladon, Miss B. Campbell, Miss Ruth Moore and Adrian Magrath. Master of ceremony was James Rutter.

Next dance at Aircraft Repair is set for Saturday and will be titled "Easter Parade."

German Seamen Are Recaptured Inside of Camp

SHERBROOKE, Que., April 19.—(CP)—Two German seamen who had been missing from an internment camp near here since Wednesday night have been found inside the camp, officials said Saturday.

Camp officials would not elaborate on the statement, saying merely "the men were found inside the camp." It was learned however that the two seamen had been hiding in one of the camp huts when located.

The two men, Rudolph Ahlmeier, 29, and Stefan Cladys, 24, have been the object of an extensive search in the Lake Memphremagog region of Quebec.

Large Increase Farm Products Is Essential

Tremendous increases in agriculture production in 1943 in Alberta are required to meet Canada's demands for food, vegetable oils and clothing, it is announced by the provincial department of agriculture.

In a list of 28 commodities released by the department, decreased production is called for in only three commodities, wheat, rye and beans. In the case of wheat, 86 per cent. of the acreage sown in 1942 will suffice; for rye, 80 per cent.; and beans, 65 per cent.

The 1943 objectives of the other 25 products, together with percentages comparing last year's production figures are given: Oats, 3,834,000 acres, 117 per cent.; barley, 2,125,000 acres, 110 per cent.; mixed grains, 80,000 acres, 110 per cent.; peas, 10,000 acres, 100 per cent.; flaxseed, 205,800 acres, 16 per cent.; potatoes, 29,925, 105 per cent.; sugar-beets, 30,800 acres, 111 per cent.; alfalfa hay, 270,000 acres, 123 per cent.; hay and clover, 356,000 acres, 120 per cent.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—AP—Five more Japanese ships, including three merchantmen, were sunk and two were damaged by American submarines during operations in the additional waters, the navy department announced Saturday.

By navy communique report, American submarines in the Pacific have now sunk 148 Japanese ships of various types, probably sunk 84 and damaged 48—a total of 214.

World Decision Necessary For True Democracy

During the next few years it will be necessary to decide whether there is going to be a true democracy which is a Christian democracy or whether the world is to have the same kind of democracy as Italy, Germany and Spain which eventually would lead to totalitarianism, the Rev. Canon A. M. Trendell stated at the Sunday evening service at All Saints' cathedral.

He was delivering a sermon at a service attended by members of the St. George's Society and chose as his topic "Deliver Us From Evil," St. George's Day falls on April 23.

The history of St. George's martyrdom was outlined by Canon Trendell who told his hearers how St. George had slain the dragon which represented the devil, and how he had rescued the maiden who represented the church.

The question as to whether "we have any right to ask God to deliver us from temptation" was discussed by the preacher, who stated that while Christ prayed that if it was possible he should be spared his ordeal he did not ask to shirk his responsibilities.

TIME OF STRESS

"In the present time of stress and conflict we must hold on firmly in our Christian beliefs," he stated. The world was facing evil and "only by our faith in Christian beliefs can we overcome through safely."

Italy, Spain and Germany did not have a Christian democracy and therefore they got totalitarianism, he said. We must decide whether we are going to have a Christian democracy or end with totalitarian ideas countries did.

This week is Holly Week Canon Trendall pointed out and we must ask ourselves, "are we also one of Christ's disciples?" The week should be a time of searching and meditation, he said.

GUEST PREACHER

Recently returned from the Alaska Highway, the Rev. Gordon Amos, Protestant chaplain on the highway, was guest preacher at the evening service at Robertson United Church.

"The highway is a hand outstretched in aid to help the other hemisphere and is a pathway to fellowship which will bring about a wider understanding between the people of Russia, China and God help us, Japan," he said.

The men in the north country of God's own land have found a great response from those in the camps, he said.

Palm Sunday was observed at Christ church on Sunday when the Rev. E. S. Otley delivered the sermon. He spoke of Christ's entry into Jerusalem and said that Christ chose the cross rather than continue to live a life which would have had a wonderful effect on the world.

The people of the world today must continue to suffer unless they are willing to live according to Jesus Christ. We must learn to resurrect in our own soul the life of Christ, he said.

Communion services and the reception of new members took place at Metropolitan United Church and Knox United Church.

Store Is Damaged In Freak Accident

An auto which struck a truck at 82 street and 118 avenue Saturday afternoon, did a rebound, struck and wrecked a bicycle, hit the side of a grocery store and caused some damage to the contents within the building.

The truck, driven by Richard Harris, 10734 106 street, was turning off 118 avenue when, police told authorities, when the car, driven by Wilson J. Roy, of the U.S. Air Force, struck the left front fender of the truck vehicle. Harris stated he had signalled a turning which was half completed when the accident occurred.

Roy reported that the truckman had not given any signal and he had swung the car to the left in an effort to avoid the accident.

The premises damaged were those of Roy's Grocery store, while the wrecked bicycle belonged to a delivery boy of the store.

On Capture of Sfax

Montgomery Wins Flying Fortress In Wager With Gen. Eisenhower

Funny Business

"Private Dobbs got himself a waterproof bed for the rainy season!"

LONDON, April 19. — (CP) — Stories about Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery, commander of the British 8th Army, are legion, but the latest one tops them all—he is reported to have won a Flying Fortress from Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander-in-chief in North Africa, on a wager that he would capture the port of Sfax by April 15.

A couple of months ago, Alan Moorehead reported in a dispatch from Sousse to the Daily Express, a group of American generals dining with Gen. Montgomery just after he had taken Tripoli discussed which was the halfway point between Tripoli and England, and eventually fixed on Sfax.

Gen. Montgomery still had the battles of Mareth and the Gabes gap to fight and he said, "what will you give me if I take Sfax by April 15?"

SEEMED FAR-FETCHED

It seemed a far-fetched bet and one that had the officers promising him anything he wanted.

"A Flying Fortress!" asked Gen. Montgomery.

They agreed at once that he should have a Fortress until the end of the war with its crew of eight, and a Liberator for American payroll. Gen. Montgomery kept his eye on the bet—even used the code word "Fortress" to denote Sfax.

When he took the city April 11 he signalled Eisenhower, Moorhead related, "Have you that Fortress?"

Eisenhower answered: "Where do you want it to land."

Moorehead said the Fortress landed Saturday at Montgomery's field to become Gen. Montgomery's personal aircraft.

The correspondent said the general had time after lunch to discuss the fining out of the matches with an office, beds and so on. He has already made his first flight in it and appears as delighted as anyone would be at having just won a bet worth 1100 dollars.

Few 'Conchies' Are Available For Farm Work

Farmers of Alberta cannot expect more than 300 or 400 conscientious objectors to be released from alternative service camps to help on farms, under recent orders issued by the Dominion department of labor, O. S. Longman, deputy minister of agriculture for Alberta, announced Monday.

"This number of men will not provide much relief for the thousands of farmers requiring extra help. I am advised 600 men alone are required by sugar beet growers in southern Alberta," Mr. Longman said.

He understood the Dominion government would appoint an administrator in each province to supervise placement of the "conchies," and he presumed an announcement regarding procedure to be followed by farmers requiring such men will be announced. When this official is appointed

In discussing the general farm labor problem, he said it is only fair to advise Alberta farmers that unless new sources of labor were made available, farmers must depend upon the supply of labor now in existence in their own communities.

EFFECTIVE USE

"If any advantage is to accrue from such agreements now being entered into as between the Alberta government and the Dominion department of labor, it will be in organizing and effectively utilizing the existing supplies of labor which are already on the farm. This province has made provision for the adjustment of school holidays in order that boys and girls may be available to assist in the harvest fields during the months of July, August, September and October," he said.

He noted the province is commencing its 1943 production year, with no understanding as to available supplies of labor, other than thousands now on the farms at the present time.

TIME EXTENDED

Inquiries at lumber camps have revealed that most of the men who were going to work there have done so, and in some cases, National Selective Service has extended the time in which agricultural workers may remain in the lumber industry, Mr. Longman added.

"Unless there is some financial incentive, by way of equalizing the reward of farm labor in harmony with that now being paid by industry, the flow of labor from farms to industry will continue despite freezing regulations, and in spite of any organization which may be set up to impose regulations or assist in direction of labor," Mr. Longman said.

Brakeman Killed As Trains Collide

SWIFT CURRENT, Sask., April 19.—(CP)—Edward White, 45-year-old brakeman of Medicine Hat, Alta., injured last night when a westbound Canadian Pacific Railway work train crashed into the rear of an eastbound freight train on a curve one mile east of Webb, Sask.

White was riding in the cupola of the caboose which caught fire at the time of the collision. Conductor Cope had just gone inside the caboose and was rescued a few minutes later by Fireman M. Burns and others.

Engine of the work train was derailed and ploughed deeply into the caboose. Fireman Burns leaped through the cab window and Engineer Robert Wilson, who escaped injury, jumped from the cab.

U.S. "Freezes" Jobs, Salaries Civil Workers

WASHINGTON, April 19.—(AP)—War manpower commissioner Paul McNutt, acting under orders from President Roosevelt, clamped a modified "job-wage freeze" order Saturday night on about half of the 52,000,000 civilian workers in the United States. Violations were made a criminal offense.

27,000,000 AFFECTED

These were forbidden to shift to a non-essential employer or from one essential employer to another unless they have been out of the job 30 days or more.

An exception was made for shifts from one essential employer to another where either the old or new work is performed in an area where the war manpower commission has put into effect an "employment stabilization program" often described as a "job-freeze plan."

In these cases, the shift may be made for higher pay if the old employer will release the worker or if the war manpower commission grants the release itself on the ground that the old employment did not make full-time use of the worker at his highest skill.

Throughout the country, workers employed in non-essential activities can move freely to other non-essential employers or to essential employers who offer higher pay.

House Prorogues

FREDERICTON, April 19.—(CP)—The New Brunswick legislature was prorogued Saturday. Prorogation came after a session in which 16 bills were introduced, one of which later was withdrawn by its sponsor. It was a bill relating to the sale of the street railway system in Saint John, and as a result of the Chaleur Bay system remains under the ownership of the New Brunswick Power Company.

Sub Crippled By Destroyer Reaches Port

LONDON, April 19. — (CP) — The British submarine H.M.S. Ursula has reached her home port after a voyage which included six days of depth charging by a German destroyer, a periscope sheared away by a charging destroyer and a long journey in the Mediterranean on patrol, the admiralty said, but she managed to limp home, depending entirely on her underwater speed, in direction when she was submerged.

A few days before the encounter with the destroyer the Ursula sent three torpedoes into an Italian troopship between Sardinia and Italy. The Italians were seen picking up survivors.

Before the Magistrate

Damien Valiquet was placed on bail of $1,500 and $500 each on two charges, wanton driving and failure to stop at the scene of an accident, was remanded for one week when he appeared before Magistrate A. L. Miller, K.C., in city police court Monday morning. Charges arose out of an accident which occurred early Sunday morning, March 21, when Irene Forrester and Lily Kozakavich, both 16, while pedestrians, were struck and injured, allegedly by the car driven by the accused.

Evidence given by Miss Forrester told of the couple walking south on 96 street near 118 avenue. They were on the pavement at the time, due to ice and slush on the sidewalk. The witness said she had seen the lights on the car which struck her on behind them. In the impact which followed she was thrown to the pavement, suffering cuts and bruises to the back of the legs and back. Her companion was unconscious when she reached him, and she went for help.

A taxidriver who had passed the scene told of finding the injured woman in the middle of the road, bleeding about the head. He had taken her to hospital.

Further police witnesses also gave evidence. Near a pool of blood on the pavement a double-bladed axe had been found and a broad right rim. Broken glass was scattered about. An examination of the car revealed a broken left fender and missing left door-handle.

The accused had come to the police station of his own accord, reporting that he had had an accident but was not certain of how or where it had occurred. A statement had been taken from the accused.

Gallagher remained in hospital for about a month.

Edvard Longmore acknowledged two previous convictions and pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication. His hearing was not good, he told the magistrate, who interrupted to tell him that he was not concerned so much about his hearing as he was about the charge. The accused was sentenced to three months with hard labor at Fort Saskatchewan.

Radio Station in Germany Denounces Nazism, Hitler

By KARL BAUMAN

WASHINGTON, April 19.—(AP)—A radio station which represents itself as located inside Germany and claims to be speaking for the old-line military officers takes the air 10 times a day to denounce—in extremely colorful language —Nazism and all its works.

The station calls itself 'Gustav Siegfried Eins." The broadcaster is "the chief." What he says about such characters as Himmler, Goebbels, Rommel et al, is largely unprintable.

"Gustav Siegried Eins," like dozens of other clandestine stations, is recorded regularly by British and United States government monitors.

"The Chief" has a 10-minute broadcast every hour, 10 hours of the day. The broadcasts are in German. Whether real or bogus, he is said to sound like a Junker.

CRITICAL OF HITLER

He used to think right well of Hitler but not other Nazi bigwigs. Recently, however, he has become critical of Hitler, too.

Except for vile language, "The Chief" uses a style patterned somewhat after that of American gossip columnists . . . "Do you know so and so?"

Paul Schmidt, German press spokesman (for foreign correspondents) is one of his most ardent hates.

Regularly he denounces the Schutzstaffel (Elite Guard) Hitler's own troops. To him Field Marshal Rommel is merely a "Nazi general."

"The Chief" starts off each broadcast with fanfare. "Attention, attention!" or "Hello, hello!" often followed by code directives in his "secret agents." There is much talk about the fatherland and how the Nazis are responsible for its troubles.

Some of his "inside information" pans out. His intelligence about impending shakeups in the German high command is described as particularly accurate.

MANY RECORDED

Since the start of the war approximately 100 clandestine stations have been recorded, some big, others small. Some disappeared as suddenly as they appeared, others have had long "runs." A recent tabulation indicated about 50 were operating, beamed to all parts of the world.

There are many tricks in the business of propaganda. The "ghost" voice is one of the best known. The Russians have used this technique repeatedly. A Russian transmitter cuts in on a German wave length and it goes something like this:

German speaker: "We are before the gates of Leningrad."

"Whost," speaking perfect German: "and you've been there a long time and you'll be there a long time longer, but won't take it."

ITALIANS LIKE TECHNIQUE

The Italians liked the "ghost" technique. They put a new twist in it. The "ghost" during broadcasts for home consumption would run in with questions apparently intended to "embarrass" the speaker. Always, however, the speaker knew the right answers, and made the "ghost" look stupid. Whether the Italian listeners knew it, was a rigged affair is not known.

Two Nazi Fighters Bagged by Canucks

LONDON, April 19.—(CP)—Two Toronto fliers, one of whom joined the fast-scoring "Wolf" squadron of the R.C.A.F. only three days ago, destroyed two Nazi fighters while flying with a Canadian fighter wing protecting R.A.F. bombers attacking Abbeville targets Saturday.

The squadron's new member, PO. P. K. Gray and Flt. Lt. H. C. Godfrey attacked a formation of three Focke-Wulf 190's and the pilots of two enemy planes baled out as their planes fell into the English channel, one afire.

Describing the attack, Gray said he gave his opponent two machine-gun bursts and the Focke-Wulf fell with smoke pouring from its engine. Godfrey's victim jumped just as his plane took fire.

These victories gave the squadron a total of 16 enemy planes in two weeks. All the Canadian fighters engaged in the Abbeville raid returned safely.

U.S. Bombers Down 50 Enemy Planes

LONDON, April 19.—(CP)—More than 50 enemy planes were destroyed by American heavy bombers Saturday in a raid in strong force on the Focke-Wulf aircraft factory at Bremen, Germany, the United States Army's European theatre headquarters announced.

Sixteen of the four-engined bombers failed to return.

Even before this story was cleared through Allied censorship, a dispatch broadcast by the Berlin radio and recorded by the Associated Press said 12 four-engined U.S. bombers were downed Saturday "while attempting to attack the north German coastal district."

Cripps Declares "Second Front" Is Ocean Front

BRISTOL, April 19.—(CP)—Sir Stafford Cripps told an audience yesterday in a way review that "the second front is an ocean front," and that, while the submarine remains a great danger, "in the last six months the tonnage available to the United Nations has shown a very considerable expansion and the sinkings of U-boats have shown a healthy increase."

Sir Stafford urged a "bold and courageous" post-war policy to be carried out in comradeship and unity, but one which would avoid the dangers of a "timid and doubting coalition government."

Churchill Lauds Indian Soldiers For Achievements

LONDON, April 19.—(CP)—Prime Minister Churchill praised the valor of Indian soldiers everywhere in a message Saturday to the viceroy of Indian, Lord Linlithgow.

"We watched with admiration the splendid achievements of the 4th Indian division at the battle of Mareth and in the recent victory at Wadi Akarit," the message said.

The 4th Indian division first went into action in Egypt in December, 1940. By the middle of last February it was reported to have suffered 15,000 casualties but to have captured 100,000 German and Italian prisoners.

South Collieries Losing Many Men To Agriculture

LETHBRIDGE, April 19.—(CP)—Southern Alberta collieries are losing large numbers of men to farms and agricultural work and indications are that a drop in coal production will result.

Most producers have numerous orders to meet and operators are hopeful that southern mines will work steadily throughout the summer, averting the usual slack period.

Some collieries in this field have already lost up to 30 per cent of their working forces this spring. Few mines have lost men during the past fortnight and expectations of officials of the mining industry are that more farmers and agricultural workers will leave before the end of the month.

U.S. Bomb Expert Killed in Take-Off

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRADIA, April 19.—(AP)—Major Kenneth McCullar of Batesville, Miss., one of the men responsible for the high development of skip bombing which has cost the Japanese many vessels, is dead.

Shortly after he was promoted from Captain, he was killed April 4 in a takeoff in New Guinea. His four-motored bomber hit a kangaroo and the impact broke hydraulic lines leading to the wheels. The liquid poured into the exhaust, enveloping the plane in flames in a matter of seconds.

McCullar was credited with sinking one light cruiser and one destroyer and four cargo vessels and with damaging another light cruiser, two destroyers and six cargo ships—all with 500-pound bombs.

McCullar had been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross and four other awards were waiting approval at the time of his death.

Flier Gambles 2 Lives On Single 'Chute—Loses

LONDON, April 19.—(CP)—R.A.F. Sgt. Dennis Smith, 23, in peacetime a bus station clerk, stood in the door of a doomed bomber over enemy country, and took a million-to-one chance.

He tried to save two lives with one parachute.

Smith, now a prisoner of war, received the Distinguished Flying Medal, the Air Ministry announced yesterday, with a citation for "courage in keeping with the highest traditions of the R.A.F."

After a June raid on Emden, his bomber was hit and caught fire. The captain gave an order to bail out high over North Holland. But Smith found Flt.-Sgt. Ernest Salway, 22, hurt, and his parachute burned.

He hoisted Salway on his back, and jumped, even though he must have known that a double jump had never been made before, and that his parachute was made to carry 250 pounds, while the weight of the two men and their equipment was 420 pounds.

The gamble failed.

Salway fell from Smith's back and was killed. Smith was severely injured when he hit the ground and was captured by the Germans.

Mussolini Again 'Shakes Up' Party

NEW YORK, April 19.—(AP)—Mussolini shook up the Fascist party again Saturday, naming Carlo Scorza secretary of the organization in a reshuffle that ousted Aldo Vidussoni, the Rome radio reported.

The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, said Aldo Vidussoni was appointed president of a council charged with assistance to the armed forces.

Scorza has been under-secretary of the party. His new position elevates him to the highest party rank under that of Mussolini.

The changes were announced after a meeting of the party leaders at which Mussolini presided.

The party shakeup follows a four-day conference last week between Mussolini and Hitler. Last week, the Berlin radio reported a shakeup in the Italian police forces by which Renzo Chierici, Black Shirt leader, was named chief in succession to Dr. Carmine Senise.

Nazis on French Coast Fear Attack, Morale Bad

LONDON, April 19.—(AP)—A French nurse who escaped from France by fleeing across the English Channel said yesterday German soldiers manning Nazi defences on the Britanny coast live in constant fear of invasion.

When the invasion comes, said 28-year-old Mademoiselle Lucienne, it will find Frenchmen using pitchforks, shovels and clubs fighting side by side with Allied troops.

The nurse's true name was concealed because of relatives in France.)

She described the morale of German troops as "very bad" and said the soldiers often got only one meal a day—a thick soup.

Concealing a bitter hatred for the Germans, she worked in a hospital caring for Nazi soldiers and learned much about what they were doing, before she escaped.

She related how the French people were disappointed when the invasion did not come in March and added that the Germans also expected it at that time.

The nurse reported that the forced conscription of labor was rapidly draining the country of young Frenchmen and said that "unless the second front comes soon, there will be no young men left to help fight.

"Germany knows this and it is as much a factor in taking them as to increase her own strength."

Some Questions and Answers about Victory Bonds

SPECIMEN

Hon. J. L. Ilsley

Minister of Finance

explains various points about Victory Bonds through this simple question and answer method

? What is a VICTORY BOND?

A Victory Bond is a document containing proof that you have loaned money to your country to help win the war, and containing your country's promise to return your money to you in a specified number of years, and, in addition, to pay you interest every six months on your money until it is repaid.

? When will Victory Bonds be paid off?

The money you invest in a bond will be paid back to you by your country when the bond reaches its maturity date, in the same way as Victory Loan Bonds of the First World War were paid. The maturity date of each bond is clearly stated in the wording of the bond.

? Is a Victory Bond a safe investment?

A Victory Bond is the safest investment in Canada. The entire resources of the Dominion stand behind it. Canada has been issuing bonds for 75 years, and has never failed to pay every dollar of principal and interest when due.

? Can I borrow money on Victory Bonds?

Yes, it is very easy to obtain a loan at reasonable interest at any bank by using your Victory Bonds as security. In this case the interest on the bonds still belongs to you. It will pay a large part of the interest charges on your loan.

? How is interest paid on Victory Bonds?

Interest on all bonds is payable each half year. The date on which interest is due are stated in the wording of the bond.

Bonds in bearer form and bonds which are registered as to principal, have interest coupons as shown on the right hand side of the bond in the illustration. One of these coupons falls due each half year, the date of maturity of each coupon being shown on its face. On each interest date, you cut off the proper coupon, and take it to your bank. Any branch in Canada of any chartered bank will cash Victory Bond interest coupons without any charge to you for this service.

No interest coupons are attached to bonds which are registered as to both principal and interest.

When the interest falls due on these bonds each half year, the Government of Canada mails you a cheque for the amount due. This cheque can be cashed at any branch in Canada of any chartered bank without any service charge.

? What is the difference between a Bearer Bond and a Registered Bond?

Bearer Bonds may be sold at any time by any person holding them, and the interest coupons attached to these bonds are payable to any person who presents them for payment. In short, bearer bonds are almost as liquid as dollar bills.

If you own registered bonds, your name and the numbers of your bonds are kept on record at Ottawa. Registered bonds are of two kinds—(a) those registered as to principal, (b) fully registered bonds, that is, bonds registered as to both principal and interest.

In the case of a bond registered as to principal, the bond can only be sold if you sign a transfer form. However the interest coupons on these bonds are payable to any person who presents them for payment.

In the case of a fully registered bond, the bond can only be sold if you sign a transfer form. Further, no interest coupons are attached to the bond. The Government pays the interest on these bonds by mailing you a cheque each half year.

Bearer bonds of any denomination may be registered as to principal, and in the case of bonds of $500 or larger amounts, bearer bonds can be exchanged for fully registered bonds. Similarly, registered bonds can be exchanged at any time for bearer bonds.

The main difference between bearer bonds and registered bonds is that registered bonds give you better protection in the event that bonds are lost, stolen or destroyed.

? Where should I put my bonds for safe-keeping?

As Victory Bonds in bearer form can easily be sold by anybody, you should keep them in a safety deposit box in a bank. If you have not a box of this kind, any bank will keep your bonds for you for a small annual charge.

Safe-keeping arrangements can also be made with many trust and loan companies.

If it is not convenient for you to place your bonds for safe-keeping with one of these institutions, be sure to keep them in a safe place at home, and be sure to keep a record of the serial numbers of the bonds in another place. These numbers will be valuable should the bonds be lost or destroyed at any time.

In any event if you keep your bonds at home or at your place of business, it is safer to have them in registered form.

? In what denominations are Victory Bonds available?

The longer term Victory Bonds, which are the kind most people buy, are available in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000 and larger amounts.

Short term bonds, which are bought for the most part by business firms and corporations, are available in denominations of $1,000 and larger amounts.

? Must I pay cash for Victory Bonds?

Not necessarily. Victory Bonds may be purchased for cash or on a regular instalment plan. Many employers make it easy for their employees to buy bonds through a salary deduction plan. Or you may arrange to pay the instalments through your bank.

? Can Victory Bonds be sold easily?

Yes, you can sell your bonds in a ready market at any time. All you have to do is take them to any investment dealer, bank, stock broker or trust company. You will be able to get your money while you wait.

Victory Bonds are the property of their individual owners who have the right to turn them into cash at any time they may desire. When a person buys a Victory Bond, that person is making it possible for this country to get the men and material needed for war use, and is helping to fight the home front battle against inflation. When people sell their bonds they are withdrawing this help. Emergency needs for cash are legitimate reasons for selling bonds provided the person has no other forms of savings which can be used, or provided the person cannot obtain a temporary loan, to be repaid out of future income, to meet the immediate need for cash. Sales to get dollars to buy things that are not essential have not legitimate reason.

We must not only increase our voluntary savings and lend them to our country through the purchase of Victory Bonds; we must also continue to hold these securities at least until after the war, unless we need money for real emergency use. "Let us compete with our neighbours, in saving, not spending."

If there are any other questions you would like answered about Victory Bonds, ask any investment dealer, banker or Victory Loan salesman. Or if you prefer, you may write to me at Ottawa and I will see that your questions are answered.

DARK JUNGLES

By JOHN C. FLEMING AND LOIS EBY

THE STORY: Allison Topping, society girl, is off to Guatemala, to run her father's chicle plantation. Barry Fielding, mining engineer, en route to the same land in search of a quicksilver mine, operated by the Quiche Indian tribe, has tried many times to dissuade her. Allison saves Barry's life by screaming a warning, but as a native plunges at him, knife in hand, Allison faints. Barry, though grateful to Allison, is still angered by her refusal to listen to reason.

CHAPTER V

FOR the next two days the Caribbean stretched as passive as a sheet of dark green glass under a cloudless sky. Allison felt a restlessness stir within her. She tried playing shuffleboard with the ship's captain but she couldn't hold her mind to the game. Her eyes kept sweeping furtively the length of the deck and holding on the door of cabin F. But it didn't open. Barry had kept to his cabin the last two days. Allison had seen the little Mexican cabin boy carry trays to the door at mealtime.

Breakfast was just over and Allison preceded Captain Hooker through the narrow doorway out onto the deck.

"What time do we dock tomorrow, Captain?" Allison smiled at the short, heavy man who walked beside her.

"With a sea like this we should reach Puerto Barrios by 5 in the morning."

His eyes twinkled humorously as he shot the girl a side glance and caught the quick frown that crossed her face.

"Don't take it so seriously, Miss Topping. Quarantine doesn't open until 7. If you can sleep through the noises of unloading cargo I will see that you are not disturbed."

Allison laughed.

"Don't worry about my sleep," she retorted. "I've had so much rest this trip I feel like a bear."

The captain laughed. He stopped as they reached the iron stairway that led up to the crow's nest.

"Even a freighter captain has to make some pretense of working," he said lightly. "And this is where my day starts. Is there anything I can do to make you more comfortable?"

"Thanks, no. I think I'll take a couple of turns around the deck and then settle down with a book. Some people think they're good company."

She swung along the sun-splashed deck with long, easy steps. The sun caught the gold in her soft roll of hair and then poured down over her powder blue open-necked blouse, her canary skirt. Her flat-heeled shoes made her look smaller, less sophisticated. She had dressed carefully that morning. As she passed Barry's cabin she stopped heavily and slowly. But the door didn't open, and she went on to her own cabin. Back on deck with a book, she settled herself in a deck chair and tried to read. Her eyes kept deserting the pages, restively turning out over the calm sea where an early morning mist festooned itself like a curtain of sheer, blue gauze above the water.

She laid her head back and watched with half-closed eyes. She could hear only the low rumbling noise of the diesel engines, and the musical rippling of the sea as it slid along the ship's hull. Slowly the discontent left her face. A mischievous smile appeared on her delicate lips. In quick decision, she lifted her purse from beside her chair and took out a pencil and notebook. She wrote the message slowly, carefully, and when she had finished, she read it through several times.

Allison opened her eyes sleepily in the total darkness of her cabin as she heard the rattle of the anchor chain. She lay quietly for only a moment as she heard running footsteps on the deck, and then slid from her warm bed, glanced at the luminous traveling clock on her dresser. It was just 10 minutes before 5 o'clock and they were dropping anchor in the bay of Puerto Barrios. She switched on a light and dressed hurriedly, selecting a mist green sports dress. After she had quickly brushed her hair she tied a narrow band of brown ribbon under it where it fell in waves to her shoulders, and made a neat tailored bow on top. She gave herself a hasty glance in the mirror, tossed her polo coat around her shoulders and went out on deck.

A thin pallor of light was melting the darkness in the eastern sky. Shadowy figures moved about on the wharf, shouting in Spanish. Allison stood alone at the ship's rail. Her heart suddenly quickened as she heard steps behind her, and then she felt the touch of a hand on her arm.

Allison turned to face him.

"You mean you thought it was one of my practical jokes?" she said lightly.

"I don't know about the practical part—but the joke part—yes. When the cabin boy brought your note I said to myself, I'll try her once more. Can't be more of a chump than I was the other day. When can we get this quarantine business over with?"

Allison felt her face flush.

"It will be a little later than I expected—"

Allison put her hand on his arm.

"I'm sorry, really I am, but I just had to see you before we left the boat," she said.

Barry's face was stern as he said, "Frankly, I don't like getting up in the middle of the night to hear funny stories."

The mischievous lights in Allison's eyes had faded. She looked imploringly up at the tall man.

"There's no joke about what I wanted to say."

"Well—"

"It's about the other night. . . . That man that attacked you—I heard him say a Quiche word. I knew then that I was to blame. I want to apologize."

Barry didn't speak for a moment. Then he said, "I guess you have to accept apologies—even if sometimes you don't care to."

"I really had a motive more important than the apology—and a more important time to use it. I thought it might be helpful if I introduced you to Renaldo. He was my father's attorney down here for years and is now managing my chicle plantation. He probably knows more people in Guatemala than any other man."

"Is there a gag to this, too?" Barry said sharply.

Allison whirled and walked up the deck. Then Barry started after her. He caught her by the arm and spun her around. Tears were misted on her long lashes.

"Oh! I know I'm acting like a heel!" Barry blurted. "But after all you have given me the run-around."

Allison smiled and looked up at him with the old twinkle in her eyes.

"I guess it's like the little boy who yelled 'fire' so often that when the house did burst into flames no one would believe him."

"I hope this Renaldo business is on the level." Barry said. "Because his name is on the list the office gave me to look up down here."

"Praise Allah for that list!" Allison teased. "Otherwise I know you wouldn't have believed me!"

Allison was like her old self again, gay, buoyant and taunting.

"If you were a gentleman you'd take me to the dining room for a cup of coffee," she laughed.

"If I were a gentleman," Barry said as they walked to the dining room, "I wouldn't have anything to do with women like you."

McCoy Health Service

When some people are asleep they make a disturbing, rough rasping sound which keeps the other members of the family awake and thus earn for themselves the reputation of being good snorers. There are probably over a thousand and one different kinds of snores and sounds made by those who are proficient in the art of "bugle blowing" and the unmusical symphony of these sounds on a sleeping car is very disturbing to others who are trying to sleep.

The history of snoring is probably as old as the practice of those habits which produce catarrhal disorders. It is not likely that Adam and Eve snored as long as they were in the celestial garden, as they probably lived on fruits, nuts and succulent green vegetables. But we learn that after they were put out of the garden, Adam was forced to "earn this bread by the sweat of his brow." This is possibly where the trouble first started. Anyway, one of the easiest ways to quit snoring is to cut out all starches such as bread, and to live on a cleansing, non-starchy diet until the snoring tendency disappears.

Although snoring is generally due to catarrh, it may also be due to enlargement of the adenoid tissue. Such enlargement may stop nose breathing and encourage the sufferer to breathe through the mouth, but even this adenoidal enlargement comes from the same causes as those producing catarrh. In these cases, the adenoids should either be surgically removed or reduced by normal size through a dieting regimen.

The noise of snoring is produced mostly by inhaling the air through the mouth and thus vibrating the uvula or soft palate. In some cases, even after the nasal passages are opened through curing the catarrh of the mucous membrane, the snorer will continue to breathe with the mouth open when he is asleep and thus continue to snore.

This is often due to the habit of mouth breathing developed through years of snoring. In these cases it is usually advisable to fasten the mouth shut with a bandage until the habit is overcome.

The quickest relief in the cure of snoring comes from taking a fruit fast for a few days. This is also the quickest way to get a start in correcting catarrhal disorders. After four or five days of the fruit juice feedings the patient should use a careful diet consisting of plenty of the cooked and raw non-starchy vegetables, together with eggs, stewed fruit, and a reasonable amount of lean meat. Three or four pieces of white bread may be permitted with the breakfast meal, made into thin slices of inorganic browned Melba toast, but other forms of starch are best avoided while you are attempting to bring about the cure. Milk should be omitted from the diet as it seems to encourage catarrhal trouble with those having a tendency in this direction.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large, stamped, self-addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 1151 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

Edmonton Girl Sees Workings Of Television

A first hand demonstration of the modern miracle of television, ice skating and poetic art by the Flying Norsewoman Sonja Henie and a view of the City of New York from the world's tallest structure, the famed Empire State building of 102 stories, were thrills enjoyed by Miss Olive Burns, senior reservations clerk in the Edmonton office of Trans Canada Air Lines, during a recent vacation spent in the east.

Miss Burns also visited Toronto and Ottawa, but the visit to New York City was the highlight of her vacation.

It was during a tour of the famed Rockefeller Centre that Miss Burns saw television working.

The receiving sets used were sold for $395 each just before the war. Eight thousand sets were sold in and around New York before the demands of war brought an end to manufacture for private use.

SOON AFTER WAR

But television for the ordinary person will be available immediately the war is over, Miss Burns was informed by officials at Rockefeller Centre.

She also visited the silver theatre of the N.B.C. where Information Please is broadcast, and saw this program being put on the air.

Sonja Henie was a real thrill to Miss Burns. New York is fine for a holiday but Edmonton still looks like a good place to live to the T.C.A. reservations clerk.

United States Red Cross Hut Proves Popular

It isn't the song-birds that come from the south that alone love Canada. You can ask any one of innumerable boys and girls from the 22 states of the union who "make themselves at home" in the newly-opened American Red Cross recreational centre on Jasper avenue. With one accord they repeat the warbler's song "I Love Canada!"

The centre, which was opened Friday, was crowded throughout Saturday. Only the uniformed visitors registered, however, the log book showing representations from 22 states, seven Canadian provinces, the British Isles, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa.

Each American cousin, of course came from the best state in the union, and loud were the praises about California, Colorado, New York State, Massachussetts, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Montana, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

Canadian provinces represented were: Nova Scotia, Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia.

Members of the services and their lady friends did a "hot-foot" Saturday night in the new establishment. Miss Muriel Kyle, in charge of entertainment, said, adding that hostesses were provided for those lads who went "stag."

The "home away from home" has got off to a grand start. "nae foolin'", declared the enthusiastic ladies in charge.

Airman Injured When Hit by Car

C. G. Gewers, a member of the R.C.A.F., was admitted and treated at General hospital early Sunday morning, city police were notified by that institution. Injuries, including a scalp wound and superficial wounds, were caused in an accident in which Gewers was struck by an auto driven by Fred Schrofel, 13350 Fort Road.

He was taken to hospital by the driver of the car, who reported to authorities that the accident had occurred while he was trying to find a parking place at Jasper avenue and 107 street.

He stated Gewers had stepped out from between two cars parked there, and that he had been struck with the right front fender and knocked to the pavement. He had stopped immediately, he said, and conveyed the injured man to the hospital.

Reserve Army Gets 1,136 New Recruits

This is a 337 increase on the figures released by army officials a few weeks ago.

Recruiting for the Reserve Army is still in progress and men are being signed up continuously.

The majority of the 1,136 were enlisted as a direct result of the recruiting campaign held throughout the province during March.

Dr. Murdoch MacKinnon, the Rev. Dr. F. S. McCall, the Rev. Mr. Reikie and the Rev. A. Finnis Marsh. Members of the Edmonton Presbytery were honorary pallbearers. Burial took place in the family plot at the Edmonton cemetery.

Many Present At Funeral of Dr. J. E. Duclos

Dignitaries of the Presbyterian church in Alberta gathered at Robertson United church Saturday afternoon to pay tribute to one of their most active workers in the mission field, the Rev. Dr. John Duclos, for whom funeral services were held. Dr. Duclos died Thursday in a city hospital. He was 80 years old.

Dr. Duclos' untiring efforts to establish a Protestant mission at Bonnyville which he did at the earnest request of some of his French compatriots, were paid high tribute by those officiating at the services. The result of his initiative, perseverance and dauntless courage was the building of nine churches, two hospitals, two schools and one Protesant separate school. These establishments stand as a lasting record to Dr. Duclos' work.

Honorary pallbearers at the funeral service were members of the Edmonton Presbytery. Conducting the service was the Rev. Dr. Murdoch MacKinnon, while the funeral address was delivered by the Rev. Dr. F. S. McCall. Prayers were delivered by the Rev. Mr. Reikie, and the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. A. Finnis Marsh of Central United church.

To survive him Dr. Duclos leaves his wife, two daughters, Mrs Leslie McIntyre, Edmonton, and Mrs. H. L. Coursier of Vernon, B.C. A sister, Mrs. A. Boy, of Montreal, and five grandchildren also survive.

Burial was made in the family plot in Edmonton cemetery.

Getting Around

although rationing of butter, shortage of labor, and overloaded transportation facilities, will cause discontinuance of the grain and dairy products exhibit.

Of course this information was not exactly startling and we were about to hand the letter back to Mr. Rose with a how come query, when our eye fastened on something in the upper part of the page.

It was, "Calgary, Alberta, Canada," beneath which was printed in letters of flaming red: "The Gateway to Alaska."

Of course we may have missed the announcement of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, that they had extended the highway to Calgary. There's so much going on these days, it is quite easy to miss such an announcement.

And now that Calgary is the "Gateway to Alaska" it might be possible for Edmonton to have the Jasper Avenue which was printed in letters of flaming red: "The Gateway to Alaska."

And now that Calgary is the "Gateway to Alaska" it might be possible for Edmonton to have the beautiful cottonwown taken in as one of the southern suburbs. As Calgary probably has a lot of vacant houses and apartments such a move would go a long ways toward solving Edmonton's pressing housing problem.

Of course new problems would arise, such as what to do with Calgary's derelict street railway equipment. And the quaint and medieval uniforms worn by the Calgary policemen would certainly be out of place in a modern, bustling city like Edmonton, with more than 120,000 people.

But we probably would be able to do something with a town like Calgary at that, and think of the benefit to Calgary.

Vermilion Has Victory Loan Unit

A strong Victory Loan committee has been established in Vermilion for the Fourth Victory Loan campaign, the chairmanship of Mayor J. W. G. Morrison, K.C., mayor of the town. The unit organizer is S. C. Hockberg, president of the Alberta command of the Canadian Legion.

Members of the committee are: J. R. Robson, Vermilion; G. J. Algot, Derwent; J. T. Fyfe, Islay; E. A. Mercer and George Pheasey, both of Manville.

During past loans the Vermilion unit has always made its quota by a very comfortable margin. Organizers and salesmen in the territory are confident that the district will do even better in the forthcoming loan.

Miners Express Regret at Delay

At a meeting held Sunday afternoon instructions were issued from the meeting that a full report on the executive's efforts to speed up a determination of this request was passed.

A meeting of the executive of the United Miners Workers of America will be held in Calgary on Tuesday, and it is anticipated that definite word may be forthcoming from the War Labor Board at that meeting.

Acquitted

KANSAS CITY, April 19.—(AP)—George W. Welsh, 29, was acquitted of a murder charge Saturday in the slaying of his sister, Leila Adele Welsh, two years ago. The jury deliberated five-and-one-half hours. The verdict was received in a crowded courtroom with a cheer which could be heard far down the hall.

New Uniforms Of Cadet Corps Almost Ready

New uniforms will be delivered shortly to the 95,000 members of the Royal Canadian Army Cadet Corps, Col. C. G. M. Grier, Ottawa, director-general of the cadet movement stated on his arrival here Monday in the course of a tour of western Canada.

He said that the uniforms have now started to roll off the production lines and will be ready for distribution in the very near future.

Col. Grier will confer with Hon. E. C. Manning, acting premier, on Monday at 2 p.m. regarding the army cadet training in this province.

"I am quite sure that the cadets will be pleased with the new uniform. It is battle dress type, and is made from a finer textured cloth than in the regular battle dress for soldiers. There will be distinctive badges on the army. The cap will be of wedge shape with a red flare and centre piece," he said.

Commenting on the army cadet movement in Alberta, Col. Grier said that excellent work was being done here under the direction of Capt. G. H. Ritson-Bennett. The number of cadets enrolled in the province was good.

Samples of the new uniforms arrived in Edmonton Monday and will be on display in Hudson's Bay Co., and T. Eaton Co., Western Ltd., windows later this week. Captain Ritson-Bennett stated.

2 Co-Operatives Now Organized

Two new livestock shipping co-operatives have been formed in Alberta it was announced Monday by F. J. Fitzpatrick, supervisor of co-operative activities for the province.

The first is at Marwayne, where J. R. Quist is secretary of the new co-operative, and the second is at Lavoy, where the secretary is Basil McParland.

At the end of February, 1941, there were 198 active co-operatives in the province. This total included 72 stores, 29 farm supplies, 79 livestock shippers, 18 livestock feeders, 15 dairy and poultry co-ops, and 25 in miscellaneous categories.

Chamber Group Planning Meeting

There will be a meeting of the reconstruction committee of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce in the chamber board room on Tuesday next starting at 4 p.m.

Truckers Wheeling Heavy Loads North

Army convoy drivers and civilian truckers are still wheeling the loads over the Alaska Highway between Dawson Creek and Whitehorse. An American Red Cross worker who arrived here over the week-end from the north said that convoys were taking advantage of hard night frosts to keep traffic rolling along the highway, despite the fact that road is too soft during the days in many places, to permit trucks to travel.

The highway system between Edmonton and Dawson Creek is impassable for trucks due to the spring thaw. Trucks on the Alaska Highway are now moving supplies brought in by railway to Dawson Creek.
